Rock Star/Movie Star Landon Palmer, 2020 During the mid 1950s when Hollywood found itself struggling to compete within an expanding entertainment media landscape, certain producers and studios saw an opportunity in making films that showcased performances by rock n roll stars. Rock stars eventually found cinema to be a useful space to extend their creative practices, and the motion picture and recording industries increasingly saw cinematic rock stardom as a profitable means to connect multiple media properties. Indeed, casting rock stars for film provided a tool for bridging new relationships across media industries and practices. From Elvis Presley to Madonna, this book examines the casting of rock stars in films. In so doing, Rock Star Movie Star offers a new perspective on the role of stardom within the convergence of media industries. While hardly the first popular music culture to see its stars making the transition to screen, the timing of rock's emergence and its staying power within popular culture proved fortuitous for a motion picture business searching for its place in the face of continuous technological and cultural change. At the same time, a post-star system film industry provided a welcoming context for rock stars who have valued authenticity, creative autonomy, and personal expression. This book uses illuminating archival resources to demonstrate how rock stars have often proven themselves to be prominent film workers, exploring this terrain of platforms, old and new, ideal media laborers whose power lies in the fact that they are rarely recognized as such. Combining star studies with media industry studies, this book proposes an integrated methodology for writing media history that combines the actions of individuals and the practices of industries. It demonstrates how stars have operated as both the gravitational center of media production as well as social actors who have taken on a decisive role in the purposes to which their images are used.

Bowie, Beckett, and Being Rodney Sharkey,2024-01-11 Addressing their shared passion for literature art and music this book documents how Samuel Beckett and David Bowie produce extraordinarily empathetic creative outputs that reflect the experience and the effect of alienation Through an exploration of their artistic practices the study also illustrates how both artists articulate shared forms of human experience otherwise silenced by normative modes of representation To liberate these experiences Bowie and Beckett create alternative theatrical musical and philosophical spaces which help frame the power relations of the psychological verbal and material places we inhabit The result is that their work demonstrates how individuals are disciplined by the implicitly repressive social order of late capitalism while simultaneously offering an informed political alternative In making the injunctions of the social order apparent Beckett and Bowie also transgress its terms opening up new spaces beyond the conventional identities of family nation and gender until both artists finally coalesce in the quantum space of the posthuman

Amy Sargeant's personal and entertaining history of British cinema aims to fill this gap. With its insightful decade by decade analysis British Cinema is brought alive for a new generation of British cinema students and the general reader alike. Sargeant challenges Rachel Low's premise that few of the films made in England during the twenties were any good by covering subjects as diverse as the art of intertitling the narrative complexities of Shooting Stars and Brunel's burlesques. Sargeant goes on to examine among other things the differing acting styles of Dietrich and Donat in the seminal Knight Without Armour to early promotional campaigns in the 1930s whereas subjects ranging from product endorsement by stars to the character of the suburban wife are covered in the 1940s. The 1950s includes topics such as the effect of post-war government intervention to Free Cinema and Lindsay Anderson's infuriating lapses of rigour together with a much needed overview of Michael Balcon's contribution to British cinema. For Sargeant the 1960s provides an overview of the tentative relationship between film and advertising and the rise of young Turks such as Tony Richardson Ken Loach Donald Cammell and Nicolas Roeg. The Greatest Album Covers of All Time Barry Miles, Grant Scott, Johnny Morgan, 2016-10-01 With the resurgence of vinyl going from strength to strength album cover art is as important as it's ever been.
