Anti-Terrorism Law and Normalising Northern Ireland Jessie Blackbourn, 2014-08-07 The Northern Ireland peace process has been heralded by those involved as a successful example of transformation from a violent conflict to a peaceful society This book examines the implementation of the Belfast Agreement in Northern Ireland and evaluates whether its goal to establish a normal peaceful society has been fully realised Using the political and legal status of England Scotland and Wales as a comparison Jessie Blackbourn evaluates eight aspects of Northern Ireland which the Agreement aimed to normalise the contested constitutional status of Northern Ireland the devolution of power decommissioning the removal of emergency laws demilitarisation police reform criminal justice reform and paramilitary prisoners The book highlights the historical context which gave rise to the need for a programme of normalisation within the Belfast Agreement with respect to these areas and assesses the extent to which that programme of normalisation has been successfully implemented By evaluating the implementation of the Belfast Agreement the book demonstrates the difficulties that transitional or post conflict states face in attempting to wind back extraordinary counter terrorism policies after periods of violence have been brought to an end The book will be of great use to students and researchers concerned with the emergence evolution and repeal of anti terrorism laws and anyone interested in the history of the conflict and peace process in Northern Ireland The Carceral Network in Ireland Fiona McCann,2020-06-26 This book examines the forms and practices of Irish confinement from the 19th century to present day to explore the social and political failings of 20th and 21st century postcolonial Ireland Building on an interdisciplinary conference held in the Crumlin Road Gaol Belfast the methodological approaches adopted across this book range from the historical and archival to the sociological political and literary This edited collection touches on topics such as industrial schools Magdalen laundries struggles and resistance in prisons both North and South Direct Provision and the ways in which prison experiences have been represented in literature cinema and the arts It sketches out an uncomfortable picture of the techniques for policing bodies deployed in Ireland for over a century This innovative study seeks to establish a link between Ireland's inhumane treatment of women and children of prisoners and of asylum seekers today and to expose and pinpoint modes of resistance to these situations Political Imprisonment and the Irish, 1912-1921 William

Murphy,2016-04-14 For a revolutionary generation of Irishmen and Irishwomen including suffragettes labour activists and nationalists imprisonment became a common experience In the years 1912 1921 thousands were arrested and held in civil prisons or in internment camps in Ireland and Britain The state's intent was to repress dissent but instead the prisons and camps became a focus of radical challenge to the legitimacy and durability of the status quo Some of these prisons and prisoners are famous Terence MacSwiney and Thomas Ashe occupy a central position in the prison martyrology of Irish republican culture and Kilmainham Gaol has become one of the most popular tourist sites in Dublin In spite of this a comprehensive history of political imprisonment focused on these years does not exist In Imprisonment and the Irish 1912 1921 William Murphy attempts to provide such a history He seeks to detail what it was like to be a political prisoner how it smelled tasted and felt More than that the volume demonstrates that understanding political imprisonment of this period is one of the keys to understanding the Irish revolution Murphy argues that the politics of imprisonment and the prison conflicts analysed here reflected and affected the rhythms of the revolution and this volume not only reconstructs and assesses the various experiences and actions of the prisoners but those of their families communities and political movements as well as the attitudes and reactions of the state and those charged with managing the prisoners Empires and Colonial Incarceration in the Twentieth Century Philip J. Havik,Helena Pinto Janeiro,Pedro Aires Oliveira,Irene Flunser Pimentel,2021-09-26 This book engages with a controversial issue namely the establishment of penal colonies and concentration camps in imperial spaces which have informed ongoing debates on the repressive practices of colonial rule and popular resistance against it The contributors offer a reassessment of the history of politically motivated incarceration based upon a multi disciplinary perspective in a global imperial setting during the twentieth century The introduction and seven chapters engage with comparative and transnational perspectives on political persecution forced confinement and colonial rule in British French German Belgian and Portuguese dominions in Africa Asia Oceania and Latin America Addressing political incarceration s global imperial dimensions they focus upon the organisation strategies narratives and practices associated with political internment in Africa Angola Tanzania Rhodesia South Africa Latin America French Guyana and the Pacific region New Caledonia Penal legislation policies of convict transport and political imprisonment resettlement prison regimes resistance and liberation struggles counter insurgency prisoner agency and prisons as cultural spaces and of memory are discussed here for different time periods from the mid 1800s to the late twentieth century The chapters build upon the ongoing debate on political incarceration in the empire and the remarkable dynamic scientific research witnessed over the last decades As a result they provide novel insights into the nature of legal systems colonial discourse memory racial segregation and persecution prisoners narratives of practices of punishment and incarceration and human rights abuses in imperial spaces The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of The Journal of Imperial and Commonwealth History The editors have also written an original conclusion to the present volume

Terrorists, Victims and Society Andrew Silke, 2003-11-14 In today s climate there is a powerful need for a balanced expert and accessible account of the psychology of terrorists and terrorism Written by an expert team of psychologists and psychiatrists these contributors have direct experience of working with terrorists victims and those tasked with the enormous responsibility of attempting to combat terrorism The first section focuses on terrorists as individuals and as groups and provides a balanced and objective insight into the psychology of terrorists what their motivations are and what keeps them involved in terrorist groups The second section explores the huge question of the impact of terrorism the direct and indirect affect on victims how societies respond and how political leaders handle the threat and consequences of terrorism The final section focuses on the question of how to respond to terrorist threat The most up to date account of our understanding of terrorists their psychology and the impact they have on the world around them Written by leading world experts on terrorist psychology A complete view of terrorism looks at the terrorists themselves their victims and society as a whole

Restorative Justice in Transitional Settings Kerry

Clamp,2016-02-12 Restorative justice is increasingly being applied to settings characterized by large scale violence and human rights abuses While many embrace this development as an important step in attempts to transform protracted conflict there are a number of conceptual challenges in transporting restorative justice from a democratic setting to one which has been affected by mass victimisation or civil war These include responding to the seriousness and scale of harms that have been caused the blurred boundaries between victims and offenders and the difficulties associated with holding someone to account and compelling reparative activities Despite reams of paper being devoted to defining restorative justice within democratic settings where the concept first emerged restorative scholars have been slow to comment on the integration of restorative justice into the transitional justice discourse Restorative Justice in Transitional Settings brings together a number of leading scholars from around the world to respond to this gap by developing and further articulating restorative justice for transitional settings These scholars push the boundaries of restorative justice to seek more effective approaches to addressing the causes and consequences of conflict and oppression in these diverse contexts Each chapter highlights a limitation with current conceptions of restorative justice in the transitional justice literature and then suggests a way in which the limitation might be overcome This book has strong interdisciplinary value and will be of interest to criminologists legal scholars and those engaged with international relations and peace treaties

The Oxford Handbook of Late Colonial Insurgencies and Counter-Insurgencies Martin Thomas,Gareth Curless,2023 Beginning with Britain's 1948 declaration of a Malayan Emergency and ending with the 1973 withdrawal of US ground troops from Vietnam this Handbook connects ideas about contested decolonization and the insurgencies that inspired it with an analysis of patterns and singularities in the conflicts that precipitated the collapse of overseas empires
