Parental Priorities And Economic Inequality:

Parental Priorities and Economic Inequality Casey B. Mulligan, 1997 Focuses on intergenerational mobility and intergenerational transmission of inequality

Parental Education and Children's Schooling Outcomes Damien de Walque, 2005 Educated parents tend to have educated children But is intergenerational transmission of human capital more nature more nurture or both De Walque uses household survey data from Rwanda that contains a large proportion of children living in households without their biological parents The data allows him to separate genetic from environmental parental influences The nonrandom placement of children is controlled by including the educational attainment of the absent biological parents and the type of relationship that links the children to their adoptive families The results of the analysis suggest that the nurture component of the intergenerational transmission of human capital is important for both parents contrary to recent evidence proposed by Behrman and Rosenzweig 2002 and Plug 2004 The author concludes that mothers education had no environmental impact on children s schooling Interestingly mothers education matters more for girls while fathers education is more important for boys Finally an important policy recommendation in the African context emerges from the analysis the risk for orphans or abandoned children to lose ground in their schooling achievements is minimized if they are placed with relatives Abstract

The Chicago School Johan Van Overtveldt, 2009-03-01 This admirably detailed and thoroughly welcome history provides a fascinating examination of a pivotal moment in the evolution of economic theory The Economist When Richard Nixon said We are all Keynesians now in 1971 few could have predicted that the next three decades would result in a complete transformation of the global economic landscape The transformation was led by a small relatively obscure group within the University of Chicago's business school and its departments of economics and political science These thinkers including Milton Friedman Gary Becker George Stigler Robert Lucas and others revolutionized economic orthodoxy in the second half of the 20th century dominated the Nobel Prizes awarded in economics and changed how business is done around the world Written by a leading European economic thinker The Chicago School is the first in depth look at how this remarkable group came together Exhaustively detailed it provides a close recounting of the decade by decade progress of the Chicago School's evolution As such it's an essential contribution to the intellectual history of our time

Inequality and Economic Integration Francesco Farina, Ernesto Savaglio, 2004-08-02 Internationally globalization and increased economic integration has impacted quality of life and individual well being Attempts to evaluate the impact on income dispersion from this process have been extremely controversial This key volume is the first real attempt to build up indices and a theoretical framework in order to deal with inequality of opportunity and to enable social and political institutions to monitor increasing disparities in well being and social exclusion It thoroughly examines the possible relationships between the recent acceleration in economic integration and inequality among persons and countries and will enable social and political institutions to monitor increasing disparities in well being and social exclusion The contributions to this volume cover various subfields of economics and examine both the negative and positive spillover effects of economic integration on individuals social groups and nations Since the impact of globalization on the most deprived people is multidimensional in nature the theoretical framework is extended to a multivariate context where several individual characteristics are simultaneously

Schools and the Equal Opportunity Problem Ludger Woessmann, Paul E. Peterson, 2007 Leading researchers from the United States and Europe report on new findings on the effect of education on equal opportunity using economic and statistical techniques to assess the results of education policy reform in countries including the United States Britain Sweden Germany and Italy Much educational research today is focused on assessing reforms that are intended to create equal opportunity for all students Many current policies aim at concentrating extra resources on the disadvantaged The state of the art research in Schools and the Equal Opportunity Problem suggests however that even sizeable differential spending on the disadvantaged will not yield an equality of results In this CESifo volume leading scholars from the United States and Europe use the tools of economics to assess the outcome of efforts to solve education s equal opportunity problem in a range of countries including the United States Britain Germany Sweden and Italy The evidence shows some routes for advancement testing with high performance standards for example and well designed school choice but also raises considerable doubts about whether many current school policies are effective in dramatically altering the opportunity structure The evidence presented also calls into question the idea that causal peer effects are very strong The contributors examine such topics as the link between education and parental income the problematic past research on peer effects tracking the distribution of educational outcomes human capital policy aimed at disadvantaged students and private public school choice The research suggests that achieving universal primary and secondary education is both urgently needed and feasible Will the international community commit the necessary economic human and political resources The challenge say the editors is as inspiring and formidable as any extraterrestrial adventures and far more likely to enrich and improve life on earth
