Blockade Runners of the Confederacy Hamilton Cochran, 2005-02-06 A readable exciting chronicle of the men and ships that ran federal naval blockades during the Civil War. Within four weeks of the fall of Fort Sumter, President Abraham Lincoln had declared a blockade of over four thousand miles of Confederate coastline from Cape Henry in Virginia to the Mexican border. In response, professional runners lured by both profits and patriotism built faster, sleeker, low-profile ships and piloted them through the ever-thickening Northern cordon. The tonnage they imported, including items ranging from straight pins to marine engines, sustained the South throughout the conflict. This exciting chronicle of the men and ships that ran federal naval blockades during the Civil War also provides an overall assessment of the blockades' conception, effectiveness, and impact on the Southern populace.

British Blockade Runners in the American Civil War Joseph McKenna, 2019-04-11 Perhaps more than all the campaigns of the Union armies, the Union naval blockade covering all major Southern ports along 3,500 miles of coastline for the duration of the war brought down the Confederacy. The daring exploits of Confederate blockade runners are well known, but many of them were British citizens operating out of neutral ports such as Nassau, Havana, and Bermuda. Focusing on British involvement in the war, this history names the overseas bankers and manufacturers who, in critical need of cotton and other Confederate exports, financed and equipped the fast little ships that ran the blockade. The author attempts to disentangle the names and aliases of the captains, many of whom were Royal Navy officers on temporary leave, and tells their stories in their own words.
