Politics and Economics in the Russian Far East Tsuneo Akaha, 2002-09-11 Politics and Economics in the Russian Far East addresses the key issue of what the Russian Far East and its Northeast Asian neighbours can do to further close economic and co operative relationships The question of to what extent the state should intervene to stimulate economic growth in the Russian Far East is covered as are the options for a more laissez faire approach The possibilities for economic co operation with the more successful market economies of the region are discussed as are the problems and opportunities presented by the exploitation of Russia's vast natural resources. This book will be essential reading for all those wishing to obtain a deeper understanding of the complexity of the issues involved in the development of co-operative relationships between Russia and its Asia Pacific neighbours.

Turning Points of World Transformation Marina Lebedeva, Vladimir Morozov, 2022-06-17. This book explores the transformation of the political organization of the world as manifest in different spheres of world politics in particular in world politics, regional studies, interaction of MNCs and government agencies and state responses to biogenic challenges. To achieve this goal, M. Lebedeva proposes the concept of a political organization of the world which in modern conditions is in the process of transformation. The transformation of the political organization of the world is accompanied by megatrends: globalization, integration, democratization and the opposite trends: de-globalization, disintegration, dedemocratization. Interdisciplinary in nature, this book brings together scholars from Russia, the United States and Canada and provides a compelling perspective on the geopolitics of our time.

Climate Change Discourse in Russia Marianna Poberezhskaya, Teresa Ashe, 2018-08-06. This book explores the development of climate change discourses in Russia. It contributes to the study of climate change as a cultural idea by developing the extensive Anglophone literature on environmental science, politics and policy pertaining to climate change in the West to consider how Russian discourses of climate change have developed. Drawing on contributors specialising in numerous periods, regions, disciplines and topics of study, the central thread of this book is the shared attempt to understand how environmental issues, particularly climate change, have been understood, investigated and conceptualised in Soviet and post-Soviet Russia. The chapters aim to complement work on the history of the discursive political construction of climate change in the West by examining a highly contrasting but intimately related cultural context. Russia remains one of the world's largest greenhouse gas emitters with one of the most carbon-intensive economies. As the world begins to suffer the extreme consequences of anthropogenic climate change, finding adequate solutions to global environmental problems necessitates the participation of all countries. Russia is a central actor in this global process and it therefore becomes increasingly important to understand climate change discourse in this region. Insights gained in this area may also be illuminating for examining environmental discourses in other resource-rich regions of the world with alternative economic and political experiences to that of the West, e.g. China, Middle East. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of Russian environmental policy and politics, climate change discourses, environmental communication and environment and sustainability in general.
