The Real Mound Builders of North America A. Martin Byers, 2018-02-02 The Real Mound Builders of North America takes the standard position that the cultural communities of the Late Woodland period hiatus when little or no transregional monumental mound building and ceremonialism existed were the linear cultural and social ancestors of the communities responsible for the monumental earthworks of the unique Mississippian ceremonial assemblage and further these Late Woodland communities were the direct linear cultural and social descendants of those communities responsible for the great Hopewellian earthwork mounds and embankments and its associated unique ceremonial assemblage Byers argues that these communities persisted largely unchanged in terms of their essential social structures and cultural traditions while varying only in terms of their ceremonial practices and their associated sodality organizations that manifested these deep structures This continuist historical trajectory view stands in contrast to the current dominant evolutionary view that emphasizes abrupt social and cultural discontinuities with the Hopewellian ceremonial assemblage and earthworks mounds and embankments complicates the traditional scholarly narrative of the unification of Hinduism By calling into guestion the colonial categories implicit in the term sectarianism Fisher's work excavates the pluralistic textures of precolonial Hinduism in the centuries prior to British intervention Drawing on previously unpublished sources in Sanskrit Tamil and Telugu Fisher argues that the performance of plural religious identities in public space in Indian early modernity paved the way for the emergence of a distinctively non Western form of religious pluralism This work provides a critical resource for understanding how Hinduism developed in the early modern period a crucial era that set the tenor for religion s role in public life in India through the Reclaiming the Hopewellian Ceremonial Sphere A. Martin Byers, 2015-11-24 Multiple Hopewellian monumental earthwork sites displaying timber features mortuary deposits and unique artifacts are found widely distributed across the North American Eastern Woodlands from the lower Mississippi Valley north to the Great Lakes These sites dating from 200 b c to a d 500 almost define the Middle Woodland period of the Eastern Woodlands Joseph Caldwell treated these sites as defining what he termed the Hopewell Interaction Sphere which he conceptualized as mediating a set of interacting mortuary funerary cults linking many different local ethnic communities In this new book A Martin Byers refines Caldwell s work coining the term Hopewell Ceremonial Sphere to more precisely characterize this transregional sphere as manifesting multiple autonomous cult sodalities of local communities affiliated into escalating levels of autonomous cult sodality heterarchies It is these cult sodality heterarchies regionally and transregionally interacting and not their autonomous communities to which the sodalities also belonged that were responsible for the Hopewellian assemblage and the heterarchies took themselves to be performing not funerary but world renewal ritual ceremonialism mediated by the deceased of their many autonomous Middle Woodland communities Paired with the cult sodality heterarchy model Byers proposes and develops the complementary heterarchical community model This model postulates a type of community that made the formation of the cult sodality heterarchy possible But Byers insists it was the sodality heterarchies and not the complementary heterarchical communities that generated the Hopewellian ceremonial sphere Detailed interpretations and explanations of Hopewellian sites and their contents in Ohio Illinois Indiana and Georgia empirically anchor his claims A singular work of unprecedented scope Reclaiming the Hopewellian Ceremonial Sphere will encourage archaeologists to re History of Greece George Grote, 1854 examine their interpretations Family Relationships in Contemporary Crime Fiction Bill Phillips, 2019-04-23 Behind every crime novel there is a family The author s the hero s or the heroine s and that of the villains themselves Some families organise themselves into crime syndicates controlling drugs prostitution and illegal gambling Others are simply dysfunctional tearing themselves apart fathers against sons mothers against daughters sisters against brothers husbands against wives Not everyone escapes alive However families do not exist in a vacuum They are an important part of our society for many one of its most essential building blocks That being said society itself can impinge disastrously on personal relationships War that greatest of crimes leaves children bereft of parents
