Berry Brazelton, 2013-08-21 This book addresses the most significant and recent issues of infant and child psychiatry examining topics from clinical care and research perspectives as well as from the perspectives of policies and programs The first book in the Mentor Series of the International Association for Child and Adolescent Psychiatry and Allied Professions it is written and edited by the foremost authorities in the field Presented with clarity in a thorough and well organized fashion to professionals caring for children across the world this book refines the most significant current knowledge concerning infants to aid infants and families from the immediate care giving of a mother to the policy decisions concerning children by a government

Continuity of Neural Functions from Prenatal to Postnatal Life Heinz F. R. Prechtl, 1984 Is the human neonate indeed physiological premature as has been frequently stated How does human neural development compare with that of other primate species Is early human development a gradual unfolding of neural mechanisms from prenatal to postnatal life or does it show rapid transformations at particular ages The aim of this book is to answer these and similar questions about the functional repertoire of the human fetus neonate and young infant Two main theoretical concepts are considered first the relationship between neural maturation and the duration of pregnancy and second the existence of ontogenetic adaptations Surveys and findings relevant to these concepts are provided by experts from various disciplines involved in research on fetal and preterm development and on the first three months of postnatal life This book differs from many others summarizing descriptive knowledge of the field by emphasizing new theoretical concepts of early functional development Recent ultrasound studies of the fetus have contributed greatly to this new approach which has clear implications for the assessment and care of young infants This thought provoking book will be of interest to developmental neurologists pediatricians and obstetricians as well as to developmental psychologists and physical anthropologists

Human Ethology Irenaus Eibl-Eibesfeldt, 2017-07-28 With the discovery of conditioned reflexes by I P Pavlov the possibilities for experimenting following the example set by the classical exact sciences were made available to the behavioral sciences Many psychologists hoped that the component parts of behavior had also been found from which the entire multifaceted cosmos of behavior could then be constructed An experimentally oriented psychology subsequently developed including the influential school of behaviorism This first text on human ethology presents itself as a unified work even though not every area could be treated with equal depth For example a branch of ethology has developed in the past decade which places particular emphasis on ecology and population genetics This field known as sociobiology has enriched discussion beyond the boundaries of behavioral biology through its stimulating and often provocative theses After vigorous debates between behaviorists anthropologists and sociologists we have entered a period of exchange of thoughts and a mutual approach which in many instances has led to cooperative projects of researchers from different disciplines This work offers a biological point of view for discussion and includes data from the author s cross cultural work and research from the staff of his institute It confirms above all else the astonishing unity of mankind and paints a basically positive picture of how we are moved by the same passions jealousies friendliness and active curiosity The need to understand ourselves has never been as great as it is today An ideologically torn humanity struggles for its survival Our species does not know how it should compensate its workers and it experiments with various economic systems constitutions and forms of government It struggles for freedom and stumbles into newer conflicts Population growth is apparently completely out of hand and at the same time many resources are being depleted We must consider our existence rati

Evaluating Family Programs Francine H. Jacobs, 2017-10-24 The diverse composition of American families and changing ways of raising our children have become subjects of intense scrutiny by researchers and policymakers in recent years Shifting demographics and work patterns growing numbers of women in the work force teenage pregnancy single parent families and the deinstitutionalization of the elderly disabled and mentally ill all these trends have significantly affected family life Evaluating Family Programs effectively bridges the gap between researchers and practitioners in order to bring practical understandable advice to providers of family programs and to program funders and policymakers Heather B Weiss and Francine H Jacobs have collected in this volume works which move outside the traditional approaches of their disciplines to create new models for delivering and evaluating services This sets a mood of genuine inquiry and excitement about successful aspects of programs while maintaining openness about the limitations of both research and practice By expanding the research model this work is an attempt to understand reciprocal influences of extended family culture community and social institutions It urges those who advocate program accountability to understand that not all types of evaluations are appropriate for all programs and it notes that limitations in current evaluation technologies make it difficult to evaluate outcomes Evaluating Family Programs reminds the reader that in order to develop sound family policy we must look at children and families in context Because policymakers program administrators and informed citizens have come to rely more upon the results of evaluation research we must improve our methods while not losing sight of its limitations It is a thought provoking contribution to the efforts of those who seek to support the American family with compassion understanding and realism

The Present Moment in Psychotherapy and Everyday Life (Norton Series on Interpersonal Neurobiology) Daniel N. Stern, 2010-05-17 While most psychotherapies agree that therapeutic work in the here and now has the greatest power to bring about change few if any books have ever addressed the problem of what here and now actually means Beginning with the claim that we are psychologically alive only in the now internationally acclaimed child psychiatrist Daniel N Stern tackles vexing yet fascinating questions such as what is the nature of nowness How is now experienced between two people What do present moments have to do with therapeutic growth and change Certain moments of shared immediate experience such as a knowing glance across a dinner table are paradigmatic of what Stern shows to be the core of human experience the 3 to 5 seconds he identifies as the present moment By placing the present moment at the center of psychotherapy Stern alters our ideas about how therapeutic change occurs and about what is significant in therapy As much a meditation on the problems of memory and experience as it is a call to appreciate every moment of experience The Present Moment is a must read for all who are interested in the latest thinking about human experience

The Interpersonal World of the Infant Daniel N.

Child Influences on Marital and Family Interaction Richard M

Lerner, Graham B. Spanier, 2013-10-22 Child Influences on Marital and Family Interaction A Life Span Perspective book grew out of a conference sponsored by the Division of Individual and Family Studies in the College of Human Development at the Pennsylvania State University in April 1977 The chapters for this volume are revised versions of the papers originally presented at the conference The book explores the conceptual methodological and empirical issues in the study of the child and his or her family It details how the age normative and atypical development of the child contributes to the parents marital quality and to the entire family's interaction patterns across the life span of both the child and parents Consequently the child is seen as capable of contributing to marriage and family relationships not only when he or she is in utero a neonate or an infant but also when the child reaches middle and late childhood adolescence and the adulthood and aged years as well

Infant Development J. Gavin Bremner, Alan Slater, George Butterworth, 1997 An account of recent research into infant development the text includes 13 chapters written by British and North American infancy researchers Although the chapters are organized along conventional lines into sections on perceptual cognitive and social development the emphasis appearing both within chapters and in the linking editorial passages within sections is on links between perceptual cognitive and social aspects of development Thus new findings on infant perception are related to both old and new accounts of cognitive development and links are drawn between these topics and the development of social interaction and language Attention is given to both traditional approaches such as Piagetian theory and more recent approaches such as direct perception and dynamic systems theory There is also a chapter devoted to interpreting infant development from a psychoanalytic perspective
