Origins Of Modern Architecture:

History of Modern Architecture Leonardo Benevolo, 1977 A serious and original study of the beginnings and development of modernism in which the pictorial aspects are designed to aid in the communication of the author's closely reasoned formulations Let it be said at once that the format of this work is richly handsome it is a two volume boxed set comprising 844 pages and well over 1 000 high quality illustrations and it reflects throughout its publisher's conviction that good design is an essential not superficial part of bookmaking Beyond that it should be emphasized that this work is not another facile cultural tour of modern architecture It is a serious and original study of the beginnings and development of modernism in which the pictorial aspects are designed to aid in the communication of the author's closely reasoned formulations rather than to gloss over a lack of substantive content The book is a translation of the third Italian edition published in 1966 Benevolo who is on the faculty of architecture in Venice has earned an international reputation as a historian of architecture and town planning and his publications embrace the span of time from the Renaissance to the foreseeable future One such publication The Origins of Modern Town Planning The MIT Press 1967 may be read as a prelude to the present work as well as an independent contribution Perhaps more than any other architectural historian in our time Benevolo has made a determined effort to place developments in design and planning in their proper social and political settings Indeed the author argues that the development of the modern movement in architecture was determined not by aesthetic formalisms but largely by the social changes that have occurred since about 1760 After the middle of the eighteenth century without the continuity of formal activity being in any way broken indeed while architectural language seems to be acquiring a particular coherence the relations between architect and society began to change radically New material and spiritual needs new ideas and modes of procedure arise both within and beyond the traditional limits and finally they run together to form a new architectural synthesis that is completely different from the old one In this way it is possible to explain the birth of modern architecture which otherwise would seem completely incomprehensible This second volume is concerned with the modern movement proper from 1914 to 1966 The author emphasizes the unity of the movement rejecting the usual treatment that allots to the individual architects separate and unconnected biographical accounts Benevolo remarks at one point When one talks about modern architecture one must bear in mind the fact that it implies not only a new range of forms but also a new way of thinking whose consequences have not yet all been calculated His main concern is to provide a more exact calculation of those consequences

Modern Architecture and Design Bill Risebero, 1983 British architect and planner Bill Risebero recreates 200 years of modern architecture and design against a backdrop of class dominance over rising industrialism The lively and opinionated text and more than 1 000 captioned drawings by the author provide a refreshing reinterpretation of architectural developments in the modern period Some Roots of Modern Architecture Heinz Rasch, 1967 History of Modern Architecture Leonardo Benevolo, 1977 Key Modern Architects Andrew Higgott, 2018-05-31 Key Modern Architects provides an accessible and thought provoking introduction to the work of the most significant architects of the modern era Fifty short chapters introduce fifty key architects from Le Corbusier to Aldo Van Eyck to Zaha Hadid exploring their most influential buildings and developing a critique of each architect's work within a broader cultural and historical context The selection represents the most influential architects working from 1890 to the present those most likely to be taught on survey courses in modern architectural history along with some lesser known names with an equal claim to influence Emphasis is placed on a critical and interpretative approach allowing the student to position each architect in a cultural and intellectual context quickly and easily Artistic technical social and intellectual developments are brought to the fore built and unbuilt projects writings and influences This approach brings to light the ideology behind architectural work offering insights into each architect's working practice Helps students to develop a critical approach to understanding modern architectural history One chapter per architect meaning chapters may be read individually as a concise resource for the study of an architect or together as a coherent book length history of the whole period of modern architecture Chapters are supported by boxed lists of each architect's most significant projects along with suggestions for further reading as a springboard to further study and research Combining the clarity and accessibility of a textbook with in depth reading and a critical approach Key Modern Architects provides an invaluable resource for both the classroom and for independent study in architectural and art history A History of Modern Architecture Jürgen Joedicke, 1959 Guide to architecture of the Western world late 19th century to 1957 History of Modern Architecture Leonardo Benevolo, 1971 A Concise History of Modern Architecture in India Jon T. Lang, 2002 In Lucid Language That Speaks To Laymen And Architects Alike This Book Provides A History Of Twentieth Century Architecture In India It Examines In Detail The Early Influences On Indian Architecture Both Of Movements Like The Bauhaus As Well As Prominent Individuals Like Habib Rehman Jawaharlal Nehru Frank Lloyd Wright And Le Corbusier The Oral History of Modern Architecture John Peter, 1994 In the closing chapter the architects speculate about the future of modern architecture Biographies a time chart a bibliography and a visitor's guide to more than 150 of the sites pictured and discussed complete the volume The Origins of Modern Architecture in Europe Robert Jawitz, 2022 Towards a Dialogical History of Modern Architecture Jorge Francisco Liernur, 2024-07-15 The book challenges three perspectives on the modern architectural canon explanations that disregard impacts and effects beyond the North Atlantic monologic superficial modifications that simply add Other figures to the canon and views that reject the canon itself Instead it recognizes the canon's significance in comprehending architecture while seeking to uncover its presumed Western centric integrity through a shift from a monological to a dialogical approach This approach integrates concepts of identity and

Otherness as dialectically articulated and mutually interrelated In essence the book's main thesis contends that the canon's historiographic construction overlooked the existence of Otherness specifically neglecting the world beyond the North Atlantic nucleus of the West By examining a global context to comprehend the canon formation the book proposes a more accurate understanding of the history of modern architecture Recognizing that this task cannot emanate from a single hegemonic center it presents the prospect of a coral type architectural history This narrative should and could encompass voices from diverse cultures to explore the particular circumstances of the world intertwined with each piece or figure transiently integrated into that canon As a result the ideal readers of this book position themselves within multiple settings keen on engaging in a critical global conversation about modern architectural discourse It will be of interest to researchers and students of architecture architectural history and cultural studies

A Critical History of Contemporary Architecture
Elie G. Haddad, David Rifkind, 2016-12-05

1960 following as it did the last CIAM meeting signalled a turning point for the Modern Movement From then on architecture was influenced by seminal texts by Aldo Rossi and Robert Venturi and gave rise to the first revisionary movement following Modernism Bringing together leading experts in the field this book provides a comprehensive critical overview of the developments in architecture from 1960 to 2010 It consists of two parts the first section providing a presentation of major movements in architecture after 1960 and the second a geographic survey that covers a wide range of territories around the world This book not only reflects the different perspectives of its various authors but also charts a middle course between the aesthetic histories that examine architecture solely in terms of its formal aspects and the more ideological histories that subject it to a critique that often skirts the discussion of its formal aspects

The Emergence of Modern Architecture Liane Lefaivre, Alexander Tzonis, 2004-07-31

A cognitive history of the emergence of modern architecture Cutting across disciplinary and institutional divisions as we know them today this book reconstructs developments within the framework of a cognitive history of the past Modern is here taken to mean the radical rethinking of architecture from the end of the tenth century in Europe to the end of the eighteenth century Among the key debates that mark the period are those that oppose tradition to innovation canon to discovery geometrical formality to natural picturesqueness the functional to the hedonistic

Architecture's Historical Turn Jorge Otero-Pailos, 2013-11-30

Architecture's Historical Turn traces the hidden history of architectural phenomenology a movement that reflected a key turning point in the early phases of postmodernism and a legitimating source for those architects who first dared to confront history as an intellectual problem and not merely as a stylistic question Jorge Otero Pailos shows how architectural phenomenology radically transformed how architects engaged theorized and produced history In the first critical intellectual account of the movement Otero Pailos discusses the contributions of leading members including Jean Labatut Charles Moore Christian Norberg Schulz and Kenneth Frampton For architects maturing after World War II Otero Pailos contends architectural history was a problem rather than a given Paradoxically their awareness of modernism's historicity led some of them to search for an ahistorical experiential constant that might underpin all architectural expression. They drew from phenomenology exploring the work of Bachelard, Merleau-Ponty, Heidegger, and Ricoeur, which they translated for architectural audiences. Initially, the concept that experience could be a timeless architectural language provided a unifying intellectual basis for the stylistic pluralism that characterized postmodernism. It helped give theory, especially the theory of architectural history, a new importance over practice. However, as Otero Pailos makes clear, architectural phenomenologists could not accept the idea of theory as an end in itself. In the mid-1980s, they were caught in the contradictory and untenable position of having to formulate their own demotion of theory. Otero Pailos reveals how ultimately the rise of architectural phenomenology played a crucial double role in the rise of postmodernism, creating the antimodern specter of a historical consciousness and offering the modern notion of essential experience as the means to defeat it.

The Imperfect City: On Architectural Judgment Samir Younes, 2016-03-03. If architectural judgment were a city, a city of ideas and forms, then it is a very imperfect city. When architects judge the success or failure of a building, the range of ways and criteria which can be used for this evaluation causes many contentious and discordant arguments. Proposing that the increase in number and intensity of such arguments threatens to destabilize the very grounds upon which judgment is supposed to rest, this book examines architectural judgment in its historical, cultural, political, and psychological dimensions and their convergence on that most expressive part of architecture, namely architectural character. It stresses the value of reasoned judgment in justifying architectural form, a judgment based on three sets of criteria: those criteria that are external to architecture, those that are internal to architecture, and those that pertain to the psychology of the architect as image maker. External criteria include philosophies of history or theories of modernity; internal criteria include architectural character and architectural composition, while the psychological criteria pertain to mimetic rivalry or rivaling desires for the same architectural forms. Yet, although architectural conflicts can adversely influence judgment, they can at the same time contribute to the advancement of architectural culture.

Colonialism and Modern Architecture in Germany Itohan Osayimwese, 2017-07-19. Over the course of the nineteenth century, drastic social and political changes, technological innovations, and exposure to non-Western cultures affected Germany's built environment in profound ways. The economic challenges of Germany's colonial project forced architects designing for the colonies to abandon a centuries-long, highly ornamental architectural style in favor of structural technologies and building materials that catered to the local contexts of its remote colonies, such as prefabricated systems. As German architects gathered information about the regions under their influence in Africa, Asia, and the Pacific during expeditions, at international exhibitions, and from colonial entrepreneurs and officials, they published their findings in books and articles and organized lectures and exhibits that stimulated progressive architectural thinking and shaped the emerging modern language of architecture within Germany itself. Offering in-depth interpretations across the fields of architectural history and postcolonial studies, Itohan Osayimwese considers the effects of colonialism, travel, and globalization.
