Segregation Poverty And Mortality In Urban African Americans:

Segregation, Poverty, and Mortality in Urban African Americans Anthony P. Polednak, 1997 The potential impact of segregation on the health of African Americans is an intriguing and controversial issue that relates to the fields of epidemiology and the social sciences Epidemiologists have recently turned to the study of racism and health but epidemiologic studies have not dealt specifically with white black segregation and health This book brings together the results of several studies examining mortality rates for African Americans in selected U S urban areas in relation to both social class and the degree of black white residential segregation Despite allowances for economic disparity amongst the residents of the metropolitan areas studied mortality rates for African American infants and young adults traditional indicators of the level of social progress are shown to be especially high in certain highly segregated areas Beside the book's primary audience epidemiologists and public health practitioners this volume should appeal to sociologists especially medical sociologists who are likely to be familiar with segregation but not with its potential relevance to the health of African Americans as well as psychologists interested in racial discrimination Social workers urban studies experts and social and health policy makers will find much relevant material in this book as well Regional Cultures and Mortality in America Stephen J. for example in access to care frequency of disease or response to treatment Relatively few researchers however have examined what these classifications mean on a theoretical level or in the context of their own research Assume for example that a researcher concludes from his or her data that African Americans utilize certain surgical procedures less frequently than whites This conclusion may mean little without an examination of the various underlying issues Is there such a construct as race at all How were whites and African Americans classified as such Does this finding reflect inappropriate overutilization of the specific procedures among whites or inappropriate underutilization among African Americans To what extent are socioeconomic status and method of payment related to the less frequent use Are there differences in the manner in which health care providers present the various treatment options to whites and to African Americans that could account for these differences in utilization Are there differences in health care seeking and health care preferences between the two groups that would explain the difference in utilization Is the racial classification a surrogate measure for another variable that has remained unidentified and unmeasured All too often unfortunately such issues are ignored or lightly dismissed with an entreaty for additional research
