and the Creation of America's National Parks Richard A. Grusin, 2004-04-22 Richard Grusin's innovative study investigates how the establishment of national parks participated in the production of American national identity after the Civil War. The creation of America's national parks is usually seen as an uncomplicated act of environmental preservation. Grusin argues instead that parks must be understood as complex cultural technologies for the reproduction of nature as landscape art. He explores the origins of America's three major parks: Yosemite, Yellowstone, and Grand Canyon in relation to other forms of landscape representation including photography, mapping, travel writing, and fiction. The New Art of

"Art, Technology and Nature" Camilla Skovbjerg Paldam, 2017-07-05 Since 1900, the connections between art and technology with nature have become increasingly inextricable. Through a selection of innovative readings by international scholars, this book presents the first investigation of the intersections between art, technology, and nature in post-medieval times. Transdisciplinary in approach, this volume's 14 essays explore art, technology, and nature's shifting constellations that are discernible at the micro level and as part of a larger chronological pattern. Included are subjects ranging from Renaissance wooden dolls, science in the Italian art academies, and artisanal epistemologies in the followers of Leonardo to Surrealism and its precursors in Mannerist grotesques and the Wunderkammer, eighteenth-century plant printing, the climate and its artistic presentations from Constable to Olafur Eliasson, and the hermeneutics of bioart. In their comprehensive introduction, editors Camilla Skovbjerg Paldam and Jacob Wamberg trace the Kantian heritage of radically separating art and technology and inserting both at a distance to nature, suggesting this was a transient chapter in history. Thus, they argue, the present renegotiation between art, technology, and nature is reminiscent of the ancient and medieval periods in which art and technology were categorized as aspects of a common area of cultivated products and their methods: the Latin ars, the Greek techne, an area moreover supposed to imitate the creative forces of nature. Art Nature Dialogues John K.
