Finney (Classic Reprint) Charles Grandison Finney, 2015-07-19 Excerpt from Memoirs of Rev Charles G Finney. The author of the following narrative sufficiently explains its origin and purpose in the introductory pages. He left the manuscript at the disposal of his family, having never decided in his own mind that it was desirable to publish it. Many of his friends, becoming aware of its existence, have urged its publication, and his children, yielding to the general demand, have presented the manuscript to Oberlin College for this purpose. In giving it to the public, it is manifestly necessary to present it essentially as we find it. No liberties can be taken with it to modify views or statements which may sometimes seem extreme or partial, or even to subdue a style which, though rugged at times, is always dramatic and forcible. Few men have better earned the right to utter their own thoughts in their own words. These thoughts and words are what the many friends of Mr. Finney will desire. The only changes that seemed allowable were occasional omissions to avoid unnecessary repetition or too minute detail or at times references that might seem too distinctly personal About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Charles Grandison Finney,1903 Charles G. Finney Charles G. Finney,1903 An 'Open-Ended Distinctiveness' Clement Yung

Wen,2020-11-16 Insofar as the twentieth century has often been referred to as the ecumenical century the twenty first seems poised to become known as the century of World Christianity Into this situation the present study seeks to show the ongoing relevance of Wolfhart Pannenberg s ecclesiological and ecumenical proposals and in doing so finds that his eschatologically oriented and historically rooted emphasis upon an open ended distinctiveness is exactly the kind of corrective that the emerging theological paradigm of World Christianity needs if it wants not only to stay contextually open ended but remain distinctively Christian in outlook and character as well Towards that end the book begins with the story of ecclesiology s definitional expansion from the time of the Reformation to now before tracing the biographical and ideational roots of Pannenberg s overall programme The study then proceeds by outlining the main contours of Pannenberg s ecclesiology and ecumenism especially as such pertain to World Christianity In this regard several facets of Pannenberg s thought are highlighted for consideration including his understanding of the church as sign of the kingdom his doctrine of participation in Christ his reassertion of the church s missionary task his underdeveloped personalist and social thought structures his ironically relevant Constantinianism his directly relevant yet abstract notion of creative love and his views concerning contextualization and the ecumenical potential of the Nicene Constantinopolitan Creed of 381 While much that is here developed serves as a healthy corrective for an emerging theological paradigm that is still maturing some surprising critical insights arise that also flow the other way
