Revaluing Renaissance Art:

Revaluing Renaissance Art Gabriele Neher, Rupert Shepherd, 2017-11-22 This title was first published in 2000 Michelangelo gave his painting of Leda and the Swan to an apprentice rather than hand it over to the emissary of the Duke of Ferrar who had commissioned it He was apparently disgusted by the failure of the emissary who was probably more used to buying pigs than discussing art to accord the picture and the artist the value they deserved Any discussion of works of art and material culture implicitly assigns them a set of values Whether these values be monetary cultural or religious they tend to constrict the ways in which such works can be discussed The variety of potential forms of valuation becomes particularly apparent during the Italian Renaissance when relations between the visual arts and humanistic studies were undergoing rapid changes against an equally fluid social economic and political background In this volume 13 scholars explicitly examine some of the complex ways in which a variety of values might be associated with Italian Renaissance material culture Papers range from a consideration of the basic values of the materials employed by artists to the manifestation of cultural values in attitudes to dress and domestic devotion By illuminating some of the ways in which values were constructed they provide a broader context within which to evaluate Renaissance material culture Images and Identity in Fifteenth-century Florence

Patricia Lee Rubin, 2007-01-01 An exploration of ways of looking in Renaissance Florence where works of art were part of a complex process of social exchange Renaissance Florence of endless fascination for the beauty of its art and architecture is no less intriguing for its dynamic political economic and social life In this book Patricia Lee Rubin crosses the boundaries of all these areas to arrive at an original and comprehensive view of the place of images in Florentine society The author asks an array of questions Why were works of art made Who were the artists who made them and who commissioned them How did they look and how were they looked at She demonstrates that the answers to such questions illuminate the contexts in which works of art were created and how they were valued and viewed Rubin seeks out the meeting places of meaning in churches in palaces in piazzas places of exchange where identities were taken on and transformed often with the mediation of images She concentrates on questions of vision and visibility on seeing and being seen With a blend of exceptional illustrations close analyses of sacred and secular paintings by artists including Fra Angelico Fra Filippo Lippi Filippino Lippi and Botticelli and wide ranging bibliographic essays the book shines new light on fifteenth century Florence a special place that made beauty one of its defining features Risks in Renaissance Art Jonathan K. Nelson, Richard J.

Zeckhauser, 2024-03-21 This Element represents the first systematic study of the risks borne by those who produced commissioned and purchased art across Renaissance Europe It employs a new methodology built around concepts from risk analysis and decision theory The Element classifies scores of documented examples of losses into production risks which arise from the conception of a work of art until its final placement and reception risks when a patron a buyer or viewer finds a work displeasing inappropriate or offensive Significant risks must be tamed before players undertake transactions The

Element discusses risk taming mechanisms operating society wide extensive communication flows social capital and trust and the measures individual participants took to reduce the likelihood and consequences of losses Those mechanisms were employed in both the patronage based system and the modern open markets which predominated respectively in Southern and Northern Europe

Locating Renaissance Art Carol M. Richardson, 2007-01-01 Renaissance art history is traditionally identified with Italian centers of production and Florence in particular Instead this book explores the dynamic interchange between European artistic centers and artists and the trade in works of art It also considers the impact of differing locations on art and artists and some of the economic political and cultural factors crucial to the emergence of an artistic center During c 1420 1520 no city or court could succeed in isolation and so artists operated within a network of interests and local and international identities The case studies presented in this book portray the Renaissance as an exciting international phenomenon with cities and courts inextricably bound together in a web of economic and political interests

Refashioning the Renaissance Paula Hohti, 2025-01-28 How did ordinary men and women dress in early modern Europe What fabrics and garments formed the essential elements of fashion for artisans and shopkeepers Did they rely on affordable alternatives to the silks jewellery and decorations favoured by the wealthy elite Or did those with modest means find innovative ways to express their fashion sense This book provides new perspectives on early modern clothing and fashion history by investigating the consumption and meaning of fashionable clothing and accessories among the popular classes Through a close examination of the materials craftsmanship and cultural significance of fashion items owned by and available to a broad group of consumers it challenges conventional assumptions that the everyday dress of ordinary families was limited to a narrow selection of garments made of coarse textiles often produced at home and resistant to change

Northern Renaissance Art Susie Nash, 2008-11-27 This book offers a wide ranging introduction to the way that art was made valued and viewed in northern Europe in the age of the Renaissance from the late fourteenth to the early years of the sixteenth century Drawing on a rich range of sources from inventories and guild regulations to poetry and chronicles it examines everything from panel paintings to carved altarpieces While many little known works are foregrounded Susie Nash also presents new ways of viewing and understanding the more familiar such as the paintings of Jan van Eyck Rogier van der Weyden and Hans Memling by considering the social and economic context of their creation and reception Throughout Nash challenges the perception that Italy was the European leader in artistic innovation at this time demonstrating forcefully that Northern art and particularly that of the Southern Netherlands dominated visual culture throughout Europe in this crucial period

Interspecies Interactions Sarah Cockram,Andrew Wells,2017-09-14 Interspecies Interactions surveys the rapidly developing field of human animal relations from the late medieval and early modern eras through to the mid Victorian period By viewing animals as authentic and autonomous historical agents who had a real impact on the world around them this book concentrates on an under examined but crucial aspect of the human animal relationship interaction Each chapter provides scholarly debate on the methods and challenges of the study of interspecies interactions and together they offer an insight into the part that humans and animals have played in shaping each other's lives as well as encouraging reflection on the directions that human-animal relations may yet take. Beginning with an exploration of Samuel Pepys' often emotional relationships with the many animals that he knew, the chapters cover a wide range of domestic, working, and wild animals and include case studies on carnival animals, cattle, dogs, horses, apes, snakes, sharks, and invertebrates. These case studies of human-animal interactions are further brought to life through visual representation by the inclusion of over 20 images within the book. From sleeve cats to lion fights, Interspecies Interactions encompasses a broad spectrum of relationships between humans and animals. Covering topics such as use, emotion, cognition, empire, status, and performance across several centuries and continents, it is essential reading for all students and scholars of historical animal studies. Early Modern Emotions

Susan Broomhall, 2016-12-08. Early Modern Emotions is a student-friendly introduction to the concepts, approaches, and sources used to study emotions in early modern Europe and to the perspectives that analysis of the history of emotions can offer early modern studies more broadly. The volume is divided into four sections that guide students through the key processes and practices employed in current research on the history of emotions. The first explains how key terms and concepts in the study of emotions relate to early modern Europe, while the second focuses on the unique ways in which emotions were conceptualized at the time. The third section introduces a range of sources and methodologies that are used to analyse early modern emotions. The final section includes a wide-ranging selection of thematic topics covering war, religion, family, politics, art, music, literature, and the non-human world, to show how analysis of emotions may offer new perspectives on the early modern period more broadly. Each section offers bite-sized, accessible commentaries providing students new to the history of emotions with the tools to begin their own investigations. Each entry is supported by annotated further reading recommendations, pointing students to the latest research in that area, and at the end of the book is a general bibliography which provides a comprehensive list of current scholarship. This book is the perfect starting point for any student wishing to study emotions in early modern Europe. Early Modern Color Worlds, 2016-09-07

Color has recently become the focus of scholarly discussion in many fields, but the categories of art, craft, science, and technology unreflectively defined according to modern disciplines have not been helpful in understanding color in the early modern period. Color worlds, consisting of practices, concepts, and objects, form the central category of analysis in this volume. The essays examine a rich variety of color worlds and their constituent engagements with materials, productions, and the ordering and conceptualization of color. Many color worlds appear to have intersected and cross-fertilized at the beginning of the seventeenth century; the essays focus especially on the creation of color languages and boundary objects to communicate across color worlds or, indeed, when and why this failed to happen. Contributors include Tawrin Baker, Barbara H. Berrie, Fokko Jan Dijksterhuis, Karin Leonhard, Andrew Morrall, Doris Oltrogge, Valentina Pugliano, Anna Marie Roos, Romana Sammern-Filzmöser, and Simon Werrett. A Cultural History of Shopping in the Early Modern Age, Tim Reinke-Williams, 2022-06-02. A Cultural History of Shopping was a

Library Journal Best in Reference selection for 2022 Across Europe the Early Modern period was marked by political religious and cultural upheaval and saw the emergence of the first global economy developments which profoundly impacted how people shopped and what they were able to buy This volume engages with the key debates around continuity and change in consumer behavior in the long 16th century and the ways in which shopping became an educational and exciting act for many women men and children across the social spectrum shops and market stalls were filled with an increasingly wide range of goods made by skilled craftspeople and transported by merchants making evermore ambitious and lucrative journeys across the world Even servants and the poor were exposed to these new things for they could consume by eye and ear what they could not afford to take home in material form Although they did not yet have a word for the activity of shopping in this period men and women came to understand that this activity was more than a functional act to acquire necessities A Cultural History of Shopping in the Early Modern Age presents an overview of the period with themes addressing practices and processes spaces and places shoppers and identities luxury and everyday home and family visual and literary representations reputation trust and credit and governance regulation and the state

Picturing the Book of Nature Sachiko Kusukawa, 2012-05-21 Because of their spectacular naturalistic pictures of plants and the human body Leonhart Fuchs's De historia stirpium and Andreas Vesalius's De humani corporis fabrica are landmark publications in the history of the printed book But as Picturing the Book of Nature makes clear they do more than bear witness to the development of book publishing during the Renaissance and to the prominence attained by the fields of medical botany and anatomy in European medicine Sachiko Kusukawa examines these texts as well as Conrad Gessner's unpublished Historia plantarum and demonstrates how their illustrations were integral to the emergence of a new type of argument during this period a visual argument for the scientific study of nature To set the stage Kusukawa begins with a survey of the technical financial artistic and political conditions that governed the production of printed books during the Renaissance It was during the first half of the sixteenth century that learned authors began using images in their research and writing but because the technology was so new there was a great deal of variety of thought and often disagreement about exactly what images could do how they should be used what degree of authority should be attributed to them which graphic elements were bearers of that authority and what sorts of truths images could and did encode Kusukawa investigates the works of Fuchs Gessner and Vesalius in light of these debates scrutinizing the scientists' treatment of illustrations and tracing their motivation for including them in their works What results is a fascinating and original study of the visual dimension of scientific knowledge in the sixteenth century

A Revolution in Colour Giorgio Riello, Maria Hayward, Ulinka Rublack, 2024-09-19 This major volume aims to re-colour the European world of dress c 1300-1800 New dyes created one of the most important visual experiences of the period yet their story has been side-lined by a focus on visual experiences shaped by the high arts Meanwhile theatrical productions and period films still abound with broad assumptions about the growing dominance of black clothing for elites during the period while ordinary people are imagined having worn coarse greys and bleached garments This volume presents clear evidence that even the clothing of the middle classes could be much more expensive than paintings and that coloured clothing and accessories were ubiquitous across society Contributors shed new light on the economic environmental and cultural dimensions of colour in dress The range of dyes expanded considerably in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries drawing on Asian and Mediterranean knowledge new collections of recipes and the greater diversity of plants available through New World trade Working creatively with organic plant animal and mineral materials to make colours involved considerable knowledge pleasure and skill The creation of colour through dyes thus reveals a whole range of global agricultural and craft technologies that can inspire future material worlds and transforms our understanding of Europe s cultural heritage
