Applying Cognitive Learning Theory to Adult Learning Daniele D. Flannery, 1993-11-23 While much is written about adult learning basic tenets of cognitive theory are often taken for granted The purpose of this volume of New Directions for Adult and Continuing Education is to present an understanding of basic cognitive theory and to apply this understanding to the teaching learning exchange It is the premise of this volume that understanding adults cognitive learning strategies is essential to facilitating successful learning This the 59th issue of New Directions for Adult and Continuing Education For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page RANN 2, 1977 RANN 2: Coping with man-made and natural hazards, 1977 National Conference on Retrofit Opportunities for Water Resource Protection in Urban Environments, 1999 Current Perspectives on Administration of Adult Education Programs Patricia

Mulcrone, 1993 Education Through Community Organizations Michael W. Galbraith, 1990 Experiential Learning: A New Approach Lewis Jackson, 1994-10-27 This volume of New Directions for Adult and Continuing Education presents discussions of a new comprehensive model of experiential learning for instructors of adults in formal educational programs Two major messages are conveyed through these discussions The first is that linking the conceptual foundations of adult and experiential learning to actual instructional applications is key to effective practice the second message is that paying attention to the assessment component of experiential learning is as important as the process of making choices about which methods and techniques should be selected to encourage learners to use and reflect on their own experiences This is the 62nd issue in the journal series New Directions for Adult and Continuing Education For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page
