Hashim, 2009-06-16 Language and Collective Mobilization analyzes the origins of communal conflict in five phases of Zanzibar's modern history The first phase examines the implementation of British colonial control focusing on the conversion of Zanzibar's subsistence farming economy to a cash crop plantation complex This first phase of colonial rule disrupted a variety of indigenous political and social institutions which traditionally promoted peace and stability During subsequent phases of colonial rule the British government devised political economic and educational policies that promoted elite Arab rule at the expense of the majority Swahili speaking population Colonial authorities rendered illegal any attempts by Swahilis to organize political resistance a rule which exacerbated anti Arab animosity Colonial rule ended in 1964 when Swahili speaking Zanzibaris led a violent revolution against English command and Arab control Having forced a variety of wealthy Arab and Indian communities off the island Swahili revolutionaries allowed a small number of Indian merchants and a few Shirazi farmers to remain Less than twenty years after the revolution in this fifth phase of Zanzibar's political history partisan conflict between the Shirazi and Swahili populations threatens to unleash a new rash of violence The social climate mirrors the first phase of British rule where economic stratification deepens and political tensions grow The analysis offered in this book will find an audience in students scholars journalists and policymakers interested in understanding so called ethnic conflict in Africa

coast port city of Dar es Salaam literally the Haven of Peace hosts a population reflecting a legacy of long relations with the Arabian Peninsula and a diaspora emanating in waves from the Indian subcontinent By the 1960s after decades of European imperial intrusions Tanzanian nationalist forces had peacefully dismantled the last British colonial structures of racial segregation and put in place an official philosophy of nonracial nationalism Yet today more than five decades after independence race is still a prominent and publicly contested subject in Dar es Salaam What makes this issue so dizzyingly elusive for government bureaucrats and ordinary people alike is East Africa's location on the Indian Ocean a historic crossroads of diverse peoples possessing varied ideas about how to reconcile human difference social belonging and place of origin Based on a range of archival oral and newspaper sources from Tanzania and India this book explores the history of cross cultural encounters that shaped regional ideas of diaspora and nationhood from the earliest days of colonial Tanganyika when Indian settlement began to expand dramatically to present day Tanzania a nation always under construction The book focuses primarily on two prominent city spaces schools and cinemas the one a site of education the other a site of leisure one typically a programmatic entity of government the other usually a bastion of commercial enterprise Nonetheless the forces shaping schools and cinemas as they developed into busy centers of urban social interaction were surprisingly similar the state community organizations nationalist movements economic change and the transnational winds of Indian Ocean culture and capital Whether in the form of institutional apparatuses like networks of Indian teacher importation and curricula adoption or through the market predominance of the Indian film industry schools and cinemas in East Africa historically were influenced by actions and ideas from around the Indian Ocean Diaspora and Nation in the Indian Ocean argues that an Indian Ocean wide perspective enables an examination of the transnational production of ideas about race against a backdrop of changing relationships and claims of belonging as new notions of nationhood and diaspora emerged It bridges an academic divide because historians often either focus on the Indian diaspora in isolation or write it out of the story of African nation building Further in contrast to the swell of publications on global Indian or South Asian diasporas that highlight longings for and contacts with the homeland the book also demonstrates that much of the creative production of diasporic Indian identities formed in East Africa was a result of local albeit cosmopolitan encounters across cities like Dar es Salaam
