Tang Transformation Texts Victor H. Mair, 2020-10-26 This is the most comprehensive study of pien wen transformation texts i.e. tales of metamorphosis in any language since the manuscripts were discovered at the beginning of the 20th century in a remote cave complex in northwest China. They are the earliest written vernacular narratives in China and are thus extremely important in the history of Chinese language and literature. Numerous scholarly controversies have surrounded the study of the texts in the last three quarters of a century; this volume seeks to resolve some of them: the extent, origins and formal characteristics of the texts; the meaning of pien wen; the identity of the authors who composed these popular narratives; and the scribes who copied them; the relationship of the texts to oral performance; and the reasons for the apparently sudden demise of the genre around the beginning of the Sung dynasty. This is a multi-disciplinary study that integrates findings from religious, literary, linguistic, sociological and historical materials, carried out with intellectual rigor. It includes an extensive bibliography of relevant sources in many languages.

Esoteric Buddhism and Texts Jinhua Chen, 2024-02-08 This book explores trans-cultural and cross-border transformation of Esoteric Buddhism in East Asia, focusing on the significance of Esoteric Buddhism in relation to some forms of material culture, including rituals, arts, and the construction of sacred space and narratives. In East Asia, Esoteric Buddhism's influences can be seen across all levels of society, not only in that it achieved a recognizable sectarian identity, but also because elements of esoteric teachings were absorbed by other religious schools, influencing their philosophical tenets and everyday practices. The influence was not confined to the religious sphere; scholars have been paying more and more attention to the significance of Tang Esoteric Buddhism in relation to material culture and the dissemination of Esoteric Buddhist technologies in South Central and East Asia. No matter how one looks at a maṇḍala, an integral feature of esoteric practice, or the uncannily expressive statues of Buddhas, Bodhisattvas, or Yidams that come in all shapes and sizes, or the murals that depict the variegated mysterious themes of the esoteric tradition, one can always recognise the profound connection between art and Esoteric Buddhism. Esoteric influences also abound in East Asian literature across different genres, displaying its unique characters both in poetry and prose. Likewise, in architecture, one can readily make out the enigmatic, colorful, and distinctive elements characteristic of the esoteric tradition. Monks initiated into the esoteric lineages not only brought Buddhist classics and practices to China, but also advanced knowledge in astronomy, calendrical calculations, and mathematical theories. The chapters in this volume investigate the profound and far-reaching impacts wrought by Esoteric Buddhism on rituals, arts, and the construction of sacred space and narratives in East Asia. This Popular Narratives Victor H. Mair, 1983-11-10 Tun huang Popular Narratives presents authoritative translations of four vernacular Chinese stories taken from fragmentary texts usually referred to as pien wen or transformation texts. Dating from the late Tang 618-907 and Five Dynasties 907-959 periods, the texts were discovered early last century in a cave at Tun huang in Chinese Central Asia. However written down in an early colloquial language by semi-literate individuals and posing formidable philological problems, the texts have not been studied critically before. Nevertheless, they represent the only surviving primary evidence of a widespread and flourishing world of popular entertainment during these centuries. The tales deal with both religious, mostly Buddhist, and secular themes and make exciting and vivid reading.

Japanese Mandalas Elizabeth ten Grotenhuis, 1998-11-01 The first broad study of Japanese mandalas to appear in a Western language, this volume interprets mandalas as sanctified realms where identification between the human and the sacred occurs. The author investigates eighth to seventeenth century paintings from three traditions: Esoteric Buddhism, Pure Land Buddhism, and the kami worshipping Shinto tradition. It is generally recognized that many of these mandalas are connected with texts and images from India and the Himalayas. A pioneering theme of this study is that, in addition to the South Asian connections, certain paradigmatic Japanese mandalas reflect pre-Buddhist Chinese concepts, including geographical concepts. In convincing and lucid prose, ten Grotenhuis chronicles an intermingling of visual, doctrinal, ritual, and literary elements in these mandalas that has come to be seen as characteristic of the Japanese religious tradition as a whole. This beautifully illustrated work begins in the first millennium B.C.E. in China with an introduction to the Book of Documents and ends in present-day Japan at the sacred site of Kumano. Ten Grotenhuis focuses on the Diamond and Womb World mandalas of Esoteric Buddhist tradition, on the Taima mandala, and other related mandalas from the Pure Land Buddhist tradition, and on mandalas associated with the kami worshipping sites of Kasuga and Kumano. She identifies specific sacred places in Japan with sacred places in India and with Buddhist cosmic diagrams. Through these identifications, the realm of the buddhas is identified with the realms of the kami and of human beings, and Japanese geographical areas are identified with Buddhist sacred geography. Explaining why certain fundamental Japanese mandalas look the way they do and how certain visual forms came to embody the sacred, ten Grotenhuis presents works that show a complex mixture of Indian, Buddhist, pre-Buddhist Chinese, Chinese, Buddhist, and indigenous Japanese elements.
