A Step Toward Cracking the Deutero-Isaiah Codes Bing W. Shen,2007 The late distinguished Professor R N Whybray of Old Testament wisdom literature formerly with the University of Hull England once commented on who the Servant is in the second half of the book of Isaiah He said to the effect that the reason the later generations are so confused about the identity of this Servant is because the key to understanding the background of the original language has been lost This author thinks that he has found the key that will unlock the meaning or the codes if you will of many verses in Isa 40 55 as amply documented in this book Many verses that puzzled quite a few commentators for centuries have found the intended meaning through the use of this key The key is to read Isa 40 55 through the book of Jeremiah This brand new approach to interpreting these sixteen much treasured chapters of Isaiah is a must read for all serious Bible students The most satisfying and illuminating result of this study is that the Jeremiah new covenant is unveiled in two DI texts and in a split up pattern The Suffering Servant is positively identified as the Principal of the Superior Party of the new covenant Through His willing acceptance of the vicarious suffering unto death the new covenant and salvation are established Furthermore the receiving party of the new covenant is no longer limited to the house of Israel and Judah but is extended to include all the peoples on this earth And this prophecy was uttered hundreds of years before the Era of the New Testament This is surely among the greatest prophecies if not THE greatest prophecy

Contextual Frames of Reference in Translation Ernst Wendland,2014-04-08 Bible translation theory and practice rightly tend to focus on the actual text of Scripture But many diverse yet interrelated contextual factors also play an important part in the implementation of a successful translation program The aim of this coursebook is to explore in varying degrees of detail a wide range of these crucial situational variables and potential influences using a multidisciplinary approach to the task Thus in order to expand and enrich the field of vision a progressive study of this complex process of intercultural interlinguistic communication is carried out according to a set of overlapping sociocultural organizational and situational cognitive orientations These contextual factors provide a broader frame of reference for analyzing interpreting and communicating the original Scriptures in a completely new contemporary setting of transmission and reception The three dimensions are then applied in a practical way to explore the dramatic throne room vision of the Apostle John Revelation 4 5 with reference to both the original Greek text and also a modern dynamic translation in Chewa a southeastern Bantu language of Africa A variety of exercises and assignments to stimulate critical and creative reflection as well as to illustrate the theoretical development of Contextual Frames of Reference is provided every step of the way Not only is translation per se discussed but the teaching and evaluation of translated texts and versions are also considered from several points of view in the final three chapters An Appendix offers a foundational essay by Professor Lourens de Vries on the subject of primary orality and the influence of this vital factor in the crosscultural communication of the Bible
