Race, Class, and the Struggle for Neighborhood in Washington, DC. Nelson F. Kofie, 1999 Race, Class, and the Struggle for Neighborhood in Washington Nelson F. Kofie, 1999 First Published in 1999 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Coming of Age in Jim Crow DC Paula C. Austin, 2019-12-10 The fullest account to date of African American young people in a segregated city Coming of Age in Jim Crow DC offers a complex narrative of the everyday lives of black young people in a racially spatially economically and politically restricted Washington DC during the 1930s In contrast to the ways in which young people have been portrayed by researchers policy makers law enforcement and the media Paula C Austin draws on previously unstudied archival material to present black poor and working class young people as thinkers theorists critics and commentators as they reckon with the boundaries imposed on them in a Jim Crow city that was also the American emblem of equality The narratives at the center of this book provide a different understanding of black urban life in the early twentieth century showing that ordinary people were expert at navigating around the limitations imposed by the District of Columbia s racially segregated politics Coming of Age in Jim Crow DC is a fresh take on the New Negro movement and a vital contribution to the history of race in America [A Study Guide for Edward P. Green, J. Yarwood, L. Daughtery, M. Mazzenga, 2015-12-24 Washington 101 offers a layman s introduction to the richness and diversity of the nation s capital An exploration of the history politics architecture and people of the city and region Washington 101 is a must read for anyone curious to learn more about Washington The Right to Suburbia Willow S Lung-Amam, 2024-09-17 In recent decades American suburbs have undergone a so called renaissance as multiple forces have transformed them into denser urban landscapes Yet at the same time suburban racial diversity immigration and poverty rates have surged The Right to Suburbia investigates how marginalized communities in the suburbs of Washington DC one of the most intensely gentrifying metropolitan regions in the United States have battled the uneven costs and benefits of redevelopment Willow Lung Amam narrates the efforts of activists community groups and political leaders fighting for communities right to suburbia that is their right to stay put and benefit from new neighborhood investments Revealing the far reaching impacts of state led redevelopment The Right to Suburbia shows how patterns of unequal racialized development and displacement are being produced and reproduced in suburbs and how communities are fighting back Contemporary Patterns Of Politics, Praxis, And Culture Georgia Anne Persons, 2005-01-01 The National Political Science Review is the official publication of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists This new volume Contemporary Patterns of Politics Praxis and Culture reflects major research focuses across religion race gender culture and of course politics Themes that engage a community of scholars also engage them in praxis as individual citizens and practitioners in a democratic society and collectively as member participants in a changing culture Two themes religion and culture are relatively new areas of intellectual curiosity for political scientists Articles in this volume extend the beachheads already established by African American political scientists in studies that gauge the significance and influence of religion in both individual and group behavior They chart religion s inevitable move onto the center stage of U S public affairs The study of culture has essentially languished for almost a generation within political science especially with regard to the study of American politics and society During this time the emphasis has also shifted significantly from an almost exclusive focus on civic culture to an expanding focus on the broad expanse of popular culture in the contemporary period Culture is the crucible within which politics race religion and gender both foment and ferment and artistic products of the culture are manifestations and mirrors of how we envision and construct a changing reality Issues of race religion gender and culture are all dimensions of individual and group identity The dynamics of changing individual and group identities change the underlying cultural canvas against which identity is displayed and politics is acted out The concept of praxis is relatively new to the lexicon of political science However engagement in the practice of politics is not a new idea for African American social scientists Indeed particularly for this group and clearly for many others scholarship influences praxis and praxis influences scholarship This volume will be of particular interest to ethnic studies specialists African American studies scholars political scientists historians and sociologists Georgia A Persons is professor of political science in the School of Public Policy at Georgia Institute of Technology where she also directs the Center for the Study of Social Change

Handbook of Community Movements and Local Organizations Ram A. Cnaan,Carl Milofsky,2007-12-18 Although the way associations and the organization of local social life are intertwined is one of the oldest approaches to community study the way citizens and residents come together informally to act and solve problems has rarely been a primary focus. Associations are central to important and developing areas of social theory and social action. This handbook takes voluntary associations as the starting point for making sense of communities. It offers a new perspective on voluntary organizations and gives an integrated yet diverse theoretical understanding of this important aspect of community life.

We Are Worth Fighting For Joshua M. Myers, 2019-12-24. The Howard University protests from the perspective and worldview of its participants. We Are Worth Fighting For is the first history of the 1989 Howard University protest. The three-day occupation of the university's Administration Building was a continuation of the student movements of the sixties and a unique challenge to the politics of the eighties. Upset at the university's appointment of the Republican strategist Lee Atwater to the Board of Trustees, students forced the issue by shutting down the operations of the university. The protest inspired in part by the emergence of conscious hip hop helped to build support for the idea of student governance and drew upon a resurgent black nationalist ethos. At the center of this story is a student organization known as Black Nia F O R C E Co, founded by Ras Baraka; the group was at the forefront of organizing the student mobilization at Howard during the spring of 1989 and thereafter. We Are Worth Fighting For explores how black student activists, young men and women, helped shape and resist the rightward shift and neoliberal foundations of American politics. This history adds to the literature on Black campus activism, Black Power studies, and the emerging histories of African American life in the 1980s.

Race/Class Conflict and Urban Financial Threat Jennifer L. Hochschild, 2024-12-19. Race and class inequality are at the crux of many policy disputes in American cities. But are they the only factors driving political discord? In Race/Class Conflict and Urban Financial Threat, political scientist Jennifer L. Hochschild examines significant policies in four major American cities to determine when race and class shape city politics, when they do not, and what additional forces have the power to shape urban policy choices. Hochschild investigates the root causes of disputes in the arenas of policing, development, schooling, and budgeting. She finds that race and class are central to the Stop Question Frisk policing policy in New York City and the development of Atlanta's Beltline. New York's Stop Question Frisk policy was intended to fight crime and keep all New Yorkers safe. In practice, however, young Black and Latino men in low-income neighborhoods were disproportionately stopped by a predominantly White police force. The goal of the Atlanta Beltline, a redevelopment project that includes public parks, new housing, commercial development, and a robust public transit system, is to expand access around the city and keep working-class residents in the city by constructing affordable housing. Instead, the construction completed thus far has encouraged gentrification and displacement of poor, disproportionately Black residents, and has increased the wealth and power of both Black and White city elites. However, Hochschild finds that race and class inequality are not central to all urban policy disputes. When investigating the issues of charter schools in Los Angeles and Chicago's pension system, she identifies a third driver: financial threat that feels existential to the policy and political actors In Los Angeles there is a battle between traditional public schools and independent charter schools Increasingly families with sufficient resources are moving out of L A to areas with better school districts Traditional public schools and charter schools must fight for the remaining students and the funding that comes with them There are not enough students to teach and not enough money to teach them The school district risks school closures layoffs and pension deficits in this context race class conflict fades into the background Chicago s public sector pension debt is at least three times as large as the city s annual budget and continues to grow Policy actors agree that the pension system needs to be stably funded Yet city leaders fearful of upsetting constituents and jeopardizing their political careers fail to implement policies that would do so Meaningful policy change to rectify the pension deficit continues to get kicked down the line for future policy actors to address In this context also race class conflict fades into the background Race Class Conflict and Urban Financial Threat is a compelling examination of the role that race class and political and fiscal threat play in shaping urban policy National Political Science Review ,2005 New Working-Class Studies John Russo,Sherry Lee Linkon,2018-08-06 We put the working class in all its varieties at the center of our work The new working class studies is not only about the labor movement or about workers of any particular kind or workers in any particular place even in the workplace Instead we ask questions about how class works for people at work at home and in the community We explore how class both unites and divides working class people which highlights the importance of understanding how class shapes and is shaped by race gender ethnicity and place We reflect on the common interests as well as the divisions between the most commonly imagined version of the working class industrial blue collar workers and workers in the new economy whose work and personal lives seem at first glance to place them solidly in the middle class from the Introduction In John Russo and Sherry Lee Linkon s book contributors trace the origins of the new working class studies explore how it is being developed both within and across fields and identify key themes and issues Historians economists geographers sociologists and scholars of literature and cultural studies introduce many and varied aspects of this emerging field Throughout they consider how the study of working class life transforms traditional disciplines and stress the importance of popular and artistic representations of working class life Critical Perspectives on Aging Meredith Minkler,Carroll Estes,2020-11-25 This unique volume brings together 20 critical essays on aging within the context of the broad social political and economic factors that help shape and determine the realities of growing old Rather than viewing aging in isolation it explores the social creation of old age dependency and the profound influence of race gender and social class on what it means to grow old It looks too at such topics as the biomedicalization of aging the role of business and the media in changing societal images of the old the fact and fiction behind senior power the multibillion dollar nursing home industry and the role of advanced capitalist nations in creating economic dependency among elders in the Third World Sundown Towns James W. Loewen,2018-07-17 Powerful and important an instant classic The Washington Post Book World The award winning look at an ugly aspect of American racism

by the bestselling author of Lies My Teacher Told Me reissued with a new preface by the author In this groundbreaking work sociologist James W Loewen author of the classic bestseller Lies My Teacher Told Me brings to light decades of hidden racial exclusion in America In a provocative sweeping analysis of American residential patterns Loewen uncovers the thousands of sundown towns almost exclusively white towns where it was an unspoken rule that blacks weren't welcome that cropped up throughout the twentieth century most of them located outside of the South Written with Loewen's trademark honesty and thoroughness Sundown Towns won the Gustavus Myers Outstanding Book Award received starred reviews in Publishers Weekly and Booklist and launched a nationwide online effort to track down and catalog sundown towns across America In a new preface Loewen puts this history in the context of current controversies around white supremacy and the Black Lives Matter movement He revisits sundown towns and finds the number way down but with notable exceptions in exclusive all white suburbs such as Kenilworth Illinois which as of 2010 had not a single black household And although many former sundown towns are now integrated they often face second generation sundown town issues such as in Ferguson Missouri a former sundown town that is now majority black but with a majority white police force

Neighborhood Planning and Community-Based Development William Peterman, 2000 This book explores the promise and limits of bottom up grass roots strategies of community organizing development and planning as blueprints for successful revitalization and maintenance of urban neighborhoods Peterman proposes conditions that need to be met for bottom up strategies to succeed Successful neighborhood development depends not only on local actions but also on the ability of local groups to marshal resources and political will at levels above that of the neighborhood itself While he supports community based initiatives he argues that there are limits to what can be accomplished exclusively at the grassroots level where most efforts fail Back cover

Embracing the Tune of Phrase: An Psychological Symphony within Race Class And The Struggle For Neighborhood In Washington Dc

In a world eaten by screens and the ceaseless chatter of quick connection, the melodic elegance and mental symphony developed by the published word frequently fade in to the background, eclipsed by the constant noise and interruptions that permeate our lives. But, situated within the pages of Race Class And The Struggle For Neighborhood In Washington Dc a charming literary treasure full of natural emotions, lies an immersive symphony waiting to be embraced. Constructed by a masterful composer of language, this charming masterpiece conducts viewers on a mental journey, skillfully unraveling the concealed tunes and profound affect resonating within each carefully crafted phrase. Within the depths of the poignant assessment, we shall discover the book is main harmonies, analyze its enthralling writing design, and surrender ourselves to the profound resonance that echoes in the depths of readers souls.
