Globalization and Transnational Surrogacy in India Sayantani DasGupta,Shamita Das Dasgupta,2014-02-14 From computer support and hotel reservations to laboratory results and radiographic interpretations it seems everything can be outsourced in our globalized world One would not think so with parenthood however especially motherhood as it is a fundamental activity humans have historically preserved as personal and private In our modern age however the advent and accessibility of assisted reproductive technologies ARTs and the ease with which they have traversed global borders has fundamentally altered the meaning of childbearing and parenting In the twenty first century parenthood is no longer achieved only through gestation adoption or traditional surrogacy but also via assisted reproductive technologies ARTs where science and technology play lead roles Furthermore in a globalized world economy where the movement and transfer of people and commodities are increasing to serve the interests of capitalism gamete donation and surrogate birth can traverse innumerable geographic socio economic racialized and political borderlands Thus reproduction itself can be outsourced This edited volume explores one specific aspect of the new assisted reproductive technologies gestational surrogacy and how its practice is changing the traditional concept of parenthood across the globe The phenomenon of transnational surrogacy has given rise to a thriving international industry where money is being legally exchanged for babies and reproductive labor has taken on a lucrative commercial tone Yet law research and activism are barely aware of this experience and are still playing catch up with rapidly changing on the ground realities This interdisciplinary collection of essays assuages the dearth of knowledge and addresses significant issues in transnational commercial gestational surrogacy as it takes shape in a peculiar relation between the West primarily the United States and India

Doing Gender, Doing Geography Saraswati Raju,Kuntala Lahiri-Dutt,2012-12-06 Until the 1970s gender had been invisible in analyses of social space and place in the androcentric discipline of geography While recent contributions to feminist geography have challenged this in India the engagement of geographers with gender by being conservative in its choice of focus and orthodox in methodology has been unable to destabilise the established disciplinary order However with younger scholars becoming increasingly interested in studying gender in geography novel and innovative methods that include combinations of quantitative and qualitative analyses visual sources and in depth case studies are being tried out and accepted in geography despite its masculine legacy This pioneering study brings together Indian geographers contributions to understanding gender and through them seeks to enrich the discipline of geography It engages with the recent spatial turn in the social sciences which has reclaimed the explanatory power of space and place in social theory that had been nearly lost to deconstructive postmodernist scholarship The volume draws entirely from the Indian scholarship showcasing contextualised knowledge production but hopes to initiate a a dialogue with scholars elsewhere working with feminist methodologies
