Shores And Headlands Princeton Series Of Contemporary Poet:

Shores and Headlands Emily Grosholz, 1988 In praise of the poetry of Emily Grosholz Grosholz has a lucid lyrical voice a pure song like quality I think many aspire to this sort of effortless music but few succeed as well as she Alice Fulton The Cliffs at Praiano Remembering backwards I foresaw you years and years ago in this lush obvious haven for romantics fishermen homeless African wind West of Amalfi east of Positano Our village curves to the sea in flights of stairs suspended above the beach a few small fishingboats a clutch of swimmers fill Whenever you enter our wide angled sultry hotel room perched on the cliffs or call my name from the balcony your presence shimmers like a memory of great anticipation Every paradox religion loves seems true as the hour opens on itself and we fall through into that numberless and unexampled matrix As the light steps back across the cliffs and one by one renounces the olive trees the limestone shelves the Saracen fortresses the pines How else could god uncertain at the cross of history appear for us except at a given hour and how else could I touch our love except in these particulars We have been happy in a truckstop south of Roanoke where shadows of semis loomed across the windows browning the yellow neon Love can do without the props of romance And yet Praiano moves us with its wild theatrical display of elements headlands currents breezes strands of light Look at the cliffs I say and mean instead that you are irrevocable Reflected sea light gleams on cliffs day has abandoned just as you stand before me in my words

The Two Yvonnés Jessica Greenbaum, 2012-09-30 This is the second collection from a Brooklyn poet whose work many readers will know from the New Yorker Jessica Greenbaum's narrative poems in which objects and metaphor share highest honors attempt revelation through close observation of the everyday Written in plain American that cats and dogs can read as Marianne Moore phrased it these contemporary lyrics bring forward the challenges of Wisawa

Szyborska the reportage of Yehuda Amichai and the formal forays of Marilyn Hacker The book asks at heart how does life present itself to us and how do we create value from our delights and losses Riding on Kenneth Koch's instruction to find one true feeling and hang on The Two Yvonnés overtakes the present with candor meditation and the classic aspiration to shape lyric into a lasting force Moving from 1960s Long Island to 1980s Houston to today's Brooklyn the poems range in subject from the pages of the Talmud to a squirrel trapped in a kitchen One tells the story of young lovers warmed by the rays Their pelvic bones sent over the horizon of their belts while another describes the Bronx Zoo in winter where the giraffes pad about like nurses walking quietly outside a sick room Another poem defines the speaker via a packing slip of her parts brown eyes brown hair from hirsute tribes in Poland and Russia The title poem in which the speaker and friends stumble through a series of flawed memories about each other unearths the human vulnerabilities that shape so much of the collection From The Two Yvonnés WHEN MY DAUGHTER GOT SICK Her cries impersonated all the world The fountain's bubbling speech was just a trick But still I turned and looked as she implored Or leaned toward muffled noises through the bricks Just radio whose waves might be her wavering whose pitch might be her quavering I turned toward where the sirens might be Save Me Help me Mommy Mommy everything She too had said since sloughing off the world She took to bed and now her voice stays fused To air like outlines of a bygone girl The streets the lake the room just places bruised Without her form the way your sheets still hold Rough echoes of the risen sleeper cold

Pass It On Rachel Hadas, 2014-07-14 The poems in Rachel Hadas's new book are united by a common preoccupation with passage passage variously construed In Section I the four seasons are glimpsed in turn through the lenses of several types of personal associations especially parenthood As spring gives way to fall and winter separation looms diverse kinds of temporary and permanent renewal come with spring and the fifth poem in this section steps outside this cycle In Section II the phrase pass it on recalls the game telephone in which a word is whispered by one speaker to another Here the poems focus on tradition primarily as it is transmitted through teaching but also through art and again parenthood Thoughts on teaching specific texts the Iliad Dickinson's poems Sophocles Philoctetes alternate with more personal moments of contemplation Finally in Section III pass it on comes to signify transition whether between spring and summer city and country youth and age presence and absence or life and death From Three Silences Of all the times when not to speak is best mother's and infant's is the easiest the milky mouth still warm against her breast Before a single year has passed he's well along the way language has cast its spell Each thing he sees now has a tale to tell A wide expanse of water cean Look Next time it seems that water is a brook The world's loose leaves bound up into a book Originally published in 1989 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 American Bookseller, 1988 Choice, 1988 Poetry Harriet Monroe, 1989 The 1002nd Night

Debora Greger, 2014-07-14 While seeming to affirm the Western poetic and cultural tradition Greger attacks its rational heart The subjects of her poems Mozart operas Botticelli's Three Graces narcissus flowers are the vestments of aristocratic Europe but her poetic issue is stream of consciousness Originally published in 1990 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Almanac Austin Smith, 2013-09-22 The memorable Stephanie Burt Yale Review and impressive Chicago Tribune debut from a remarkable new voice in poetry Almanac is a collection of lyrical and narrative poems that celebrate and mourn the passing of the world of the small family farm But while the poems are all involved in some way with the rural Midwest particularly with the people and land of the northwestern Illinois dairy farm where Austin Smith was born and raised they are anything but merely regional As the poems reflect on farm life they open out to speak about childhood and death the loss of tradition the destruction of the natural world and the severing of connections between people and the land This collection also reflects on a long poetic apprenticeship Smith's father is a poet himself and Almanac is in part a meditation about the responsibility of the poet especially the young poet when it falls to him to speak for what is vanishing To quote another Illinois poet Thomas James Smith has attempted in this book to write poems clear as the glass of wine on his father's table every Christmas Eve By turns exhilarating and disquieting this is a remarkable debut from a distinctive new voice in American poetry From Almanac THE MUMMY IN THE FREEPORT ART MUSEUM Austin Smith Amongst the masterpieces of the small town Picassos and Van Goghs and photographs of the rural poor and busts of dead Greeks or the molds of busts donated by the Art Institute of Chicago to this dying town's little museum there was a mummy a real mummy laid out in a dim lit room by himself I used to go to the museum just to visit him a pharaoh who expecting an afterlife of beautiful virgins and infinite food and all the riches and jewels he'd enjoyed in earthly life must have wondered how the hell he'd ended up in Freeport Illinois And I used to go alone into that room and stand beside his sarcophagus and say My friend I've asked myself the same thing

The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 1991 Italian Americana, 1995 The Georgia Review, 1989 Granta 25 Bill Buford, 1988 As the policy of glasnost inspires new interest in and curiosity about the Soviet Union Granta is once again at the forefront of discovery insight and reportage
