Lucy's Recipes For Mountain Living:

Lucy's Recipes for Mountain Living Eva McCall, Emma Edsall, 2002-08-01 Eva McCall told about Lucy Davenport's life in her novels Edge of Heaven and Children of the Mountain. With thirteen children to feed, Lucy used all the foods her family could grow, catch, or kill. Like most mountain cooks in the early twentieth century, Lucy's cooking directions do not have exact measurements nor are they kitchen tested. Instead, her granddaughters, Eva McCall and Emma Edsall, recall how Lucy would bake a bear preserve, beans as leather britches, or bake a scrumptious blackberry pie. Together, they have put in writing their recollections of Lucy's daily activities in the kitchen, and Lucy's Recipes for Mountain Living is a warm and light-hearted look at how Lucy kept her large family fed.

The Red Glass Pamela K. Keyser, 2009-06-09 Can an absent mother's love save her child? Sadie rummages her memory for every proverb her mother uttered; they become her mantras. Her before-drawers mother always tried to see goodness everywhere, and Sadie tries to emulate her, soaking up any glints of kindness to insulate her in hard times. Can poetry substitute for tears? Sadie expresses her emotions in poems which she hides away in her suitcase, and if found, will cost her a beating. Can simple objects like a red plastic glass minister to an abused child? Yes, if you are Sadie, the glass is her talisman. This is not just a story of just hardship; it's about coming through hardship with your soul intact, about finally triumphing and thriving. At its core, it's about finding, although not understanding, forgiveness.

Me, My Bike and a Street Dog Called Lucy Ishbel Holmes, 2018 This new title from Bradt tells the inspiring and emotional story of Ishbel Holmes, also known as World Bike Girl, a Scottish-Iranian woman who became a champion racing cyclist in spite of having been abandoned by her family and who set off on the adventure of a lifetime despite her lack of experience, money, or equipment. Ishbel Holmes was determined to cycle the world, but her journey took a completely unexpected turn when, despite her initial instincts not to, she rescued a street dog in Turkey. Ishbel was lost and alone when she started on her epic trip, but in Lucy, she found a companionship never previously known. Between the two, there formed a deep bond, and their relationship was followed and supported by thousands of readers online before becoming a media sensation overnight when Ishbel put out a plea for help to transport Lucy to an animal shelter three hundred miles away. This heart-rending tale is about more than just the relationship between a woman and her dog. It is a testimony to the human spirit overcoming present day challenges and churning up long buried and painful memories from Ishbel's earlier life. It is also a tale of adventure, one person's determination to cross an unfamiliar country by bike and the unforgettable scenes that greet her on the Turkey-Syria border and into Syria itself. And it is a loving portrait of Lucy, the street dog that was determined not to let Ishbel go and whose dogged persistence helped to break down the barriers around her heart and in so doing change her life in ways she had never imagined. Ultimately, this is a tale of love and healing, a modern fable that touches the soul and reminds us all of the need to belong. Eliza Cook's Journal Eliza Cook, 1850
