The Investment Treaty Regime and Public Interest Regulation in Africa Dominic Npoanlari Dagbanja, 2022-07-14
A large amount of foreign direct investment FDI has been poured into Africa in recent decades and these investments can come with adverse effects on the environment human rights and development At the same time investment treaties entered into by African states and aimed at promoting and protecting FDI seriously limit those states ability to regulate such activities in the interests of affected communities Whilst these tensions have generated global debate little attention has been paid to the legal status of many of these investment treaties and whether given their constitutional and customary international law obligations to act in the public interest African states truly have the capacity to conclude treaties which contain standards of investment protection expressly preventing or unduly abridging the exercise of their regulatory authority Focusing on this question The Investment Treaty Regime and Public Interest Regulation in Africa presents The Imperatives Theory a legal normative and principled framework for rethinking the legal status making and reform of investment treaties and investment dispute settlement in Africa with relevant and significant implications for the global investment treaty regime

Regimes in Southeast Asia Henriette Litta, 2011-11-01 In the context of massive environmental problems in Southeast Asia the countries in the region have decided at least in some instances to create regimes to solve these problems jointly This empirical observation is surprising given the Southeast Asian countries general reluctance to regional cooperation the governance and budgetary constraints that are typical for developing countries and the huge heterogeneity of the involved countries in terms of environmental vulnerability economic capacity and hegemonic power This book analyzes the creation and effectiveness of two environmental regimes one on transboundary haze pollution and a second on resource management of the Mekong It will be shown that regime creation is extremely problematic and strategies to overcome conflicting actor constellations are mostly lacking

The International Regime of Fisheries José A. Yturriaga, 2021-09-27 Until recently the international community failed to adopt either an agreed limit for the breadth of the territorial sea or a satisfactory regime of fisheries in the waters adjacent to the territorial sea This provoked an eruption of unilateral acts by which coastal states extended their jurisdiction towards the high seas The Third U N Conference on the Law of the Sea accepted the establishment of a 12 mile territorial sea and a 200 mile exclusive economic zone While taking into account the non existent rights and interests of the so called geographically disadvantaged states and of states with broad continental shelves the 1982 Convention on the Law of the Sea practically ignored existing rights and interests of habitual fishing states It maintained the well established principle of freedom of fishing on the high seas but with specific conditions Dissatisfied with the Convention s regulation of fishing on the high seas a few states elected to hold a U N Conference on Straddling and Highly Migratory Fish Stocks which adopted the 1995 Agreement for the implementation of the provisions of the Convention relating to the conservation and management of such stocks Similarly some of these states like Chile Argentina and Canada adopted legislation extending their jurisdiction beyond their respective 200 mile fishing or exclusive economic zones This book explores these events in the historical development of the international regulations of fisheries and concludes with a look into recent developments in the area International Governance and Regimes

Peter Kien Hong Yu, 2012-08-21 This book examines China's involvement in international governance international regimes and globalization Peter Kien hong Yu offers a new framework with which to understand international regimes and applies it to important Chinese case studies such as arms control disarmament and non proliferation the counter piracy regime and the environmental issue Whilst internationally important matters related to such systems are identified Yu's discussions attempt to find out whether any particular system works better in relation to China and asks if not why not After examining eight different cases the author concludes that these regimes are working but there is ample room for improvement and that the Chinese Communists for one have to enhance their understanding of international governance and try to export their experience to other parts of the world International Governance and Regimes will be appeal to anyone interested in International Straits Ana G. López Martín, 2010-08-14 The four 1958 Geneva Conventions on the Law of the Sea which codified and progressively developed this sector of our legislation were rather ephemeral despite the fact that they were constituent Conventions In fact the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea UNCLOS again undertook the same task with the same spirit 20 years later after a long drawn out global negotiation process in which all the marine areas and problems pending were analysed and discussed by the countries attending and an apparently strengthened majority was attained including the essential agreement between the principal naval powers and the third world countries symbolised most grossly in the recognition of exclusive economic areas which were 200 miles wide in exchange for a significant alteration to the legal rules applicable to the international straits From 1973 to 1982 the negotiations showed that there were a number of particular factors affecting the seas strait countries user countries long range shing countries embedded countries archipelagic countries broad platform countries etc In 1982 when the UNCLOS was adopted it seemed to be a text with justified pretensions to be in force for a long period of time as the nine years of negotiations required for its adoption had taken into account the main problems pending agreement although not absolutely all The Law of the Sea in the Asian Pacific

Region James Crawford, Donald R. Rothwell, 1995 The volume surveys and discusses the range of current issues arising in the law of the sea from an Asian Pacific perspective There have been major developments in the law of the sea in the region many current controversies e g over archipelagic sealanes passage drift net fishing and environmental management have their origins or important exemplars in the region The contributors include international lawyers political scientists and government officials with expertise in the region Particular aspects of the book which are of interest are a its discussion of the perspectives of particular countries in the region East Asia Australia the Pacific Islands b its focus on issues of the marine environment and fisheries including drift net fishing c discussion of specific developments which are of general interest the Torres Strait Treaty and its implementation maritime confidence building measures dispute resolution and d an overview of issues relating to high seas freedoms including in particular transit through straits and archipelagoes There is a concluding essay by the editors summarizing the various trends
