Ruderal City Bettina Stoetzer traces relationships among people plants and animals in contemporary Berlin as they make their lives in the ruins of European nationalism and capitalism She develops the notion of the ruderal originally an ecological designation for the unruly life that inhabits inhospitable environments such as rubble roadsides train tracks and sidewalk cracks to theorize Berlin as a ruderal city Stoetzer explores sites in and around Berlin that have figured in German national imaginaries gardens forests parks and rubble fields to show how racial class and gender inequalities shape contestations over today s uses and knowledges of urban nature Drawing on fieldwork with gardeners botanists migrant workers refugees public officials and nature enthusiasts while charting human and more than human worlds Stoetzer offers a wide ranging ethnographic portrait of Berlin s postwar ecologies that reveals emergent futures in the margins of European cities Brimming with stories that break down divides between environmental perspectives and the study of migration and racial politics Berlin s ruderal worlds help us rethink the space of nature and culture and the categories through which we make sense of urban life in inhospitable times
