Loving Arms Karen Schneider, 2021-09-15 Loving Arms examines the war related writings of five British women whose works explore the connections among gender war and story telling While not the first study to relate the subjects of gender and war it is the first within a growing body of criticism to focus specifically on British culture during and after World War II Evoking the famous St Crispin's Day speech from Henry V and then her own father's account of being moved to tears on V J Day because he had been too young to fight Karen Schneider posits that the war story has a far reaching potency She admits perhaps for all of us that such stories had powerfully shaped my consciousness in ways I could not completely resist How a story is narrated and by whom are matters of no small importance As widely defined and accepted war stories are men's stories If we are to hear an other story of war then we must listen to the stories women tell Many of the war stories written by women insist that war is not the condition of men but rather the condition of humanity beginning with relations between the sexes For the five women whose work is examined in Loving Arms Stevie Smith Katharine Burdekin Virginia Woolf Elizabeth Bowen and Doris Lessing this latter point was particularly relevant Their positions as women within a patriarchal militarist culture that was externally threatened by an overtly fascist one led to an acute ambivalence says Schneider Though all five women perceived the war from substantially different perspectives each in her own way exposed and critiqued the seductive power of war and war stories with their densely interwoven tropes of masculinity and nationalism Yet these writers conflicting impulses of loyalty to England and resistance to the war betray their ambivalence Loving Arms will interest students of twentieth century British literature and culture gender studies and narratology Even today we maintain an unabated love affair with the war story But unless we listen to what the women had to say fifty years ago we are doomed to hear only the same old story

Going Back Charles Furey,2004-12-01 Like millions of other young Americans in the 1930s Charles Furey grew up surrounded by the images and memories of World War I not knowing that he was part of a generation bred for another war Pearl Harbor changed all that In 1942 he enlisted in the Navy and for the next three years fought in a war that transformed him the nation and the world From that time Furey has fashioned this superbly written memoir that follows him from his stateside training his service as an air crewman on a patrol bomber his long recovery from a fiery plane crash all the way to his poignant homecoming Along with harrowing accounts of air actions over the South Pacific and grim descriptions of wounded men in hospitals Going Back includes many vividly portrayed characters and offers remarkable insight Readers will long remember such men as Lieutenant Morrison the man whose small gesture forged an intense camaraderie among his crew and Murphy the Marine whose humor helped dull the pain of Furey s wounds Nor will they soon forget the author s reflections on the fate that history held for him his friends and all those who came of age with him or his stunning evocation of a period of great national change Going Back provides a colorful and honest recollection of the war years and addresses such timeless themes as loyalty humor family and profound loss
