Nobbs-Thiessen, 2020-03-19 In the wake of a 1952 revolution leaders of Bolivia's National Revolutionary Movement MNR embarked on a program of internal colonization known as the March to the East In an impoverished country dependent on highland mining the MNR sought to convert the nation's vast undeveloped Amazonian frontier into farmland hoping to achieve food security territorial integrity and demographic balance To do so they encouraged hundreds of thousands of Indigenous Bolivians to relocate from the overcrowded Andes to the tropical lowlands but also welcomed surprising transnational migrant streams including horse and buggy Mennonites from Mexico and displaced Okinawans from across the Pacific Ben Nobbs Thiessen details the multifaceted results of these migrations on the environment of the South American interior As he reveals one of the migrants with the greatest impact was the soybean which Bolivia embraced as a profitable cash crop while eschewing earlier goals of food security creating a new model for extractive export agriculture Half a century of colonization would transform the small regional capital of Santa Cruz de la Sierra into Bolivia's largest city and the diverging stories of Andean Mennonite and Okinawan migrants complicate our understandings of tradition modernity foreignness and belonging in the heart of a rising agro industrial empire Art in America , 2005 An Environmental

History of Wildlife in England 1650 - 1950 Tom Williamson, 2013-12-05 Choice Outstanding Academic Title 2014 While few detailed surveys of fauna or flora exist in England from the period before the nineteenth century it is possible to combine the evidence of historical sources ranging from game books diaries churchwardens accounts and even folk songs and our wider knowledge of past land use and landscape with contemporary analyses made by modern natural scientists in order to model the situation at various times and places in the more remote past This timely volume encompasses both rural and urban environments from 1650 to the mid twentieth century drawing on a wide variety of social historical and ecological sources It examines the impact of social and economic organisation on the English landscape biodiversity the agricultural revolution landed estates the coming of large scale industry and the growth of towns and suburbs It also develops an original perspective on the complexity and ambiguity of man animal relationships in this post medieval period Critic and Literary
