The Life of the Red Sea Dhow Dionisius A. Agius, 2019-04-04 Few images are as evocative as the silhouette of the Arab dhow as under full sail it tacks to windward on glittering waters of Red Sea before moving across the face of the rising or setting sun In this authoritative new book Dionisius A Agius one of the foremost scholars of Islamic material culture offers a lucid and wide ranging history of the iconic dhow from medieval to modern times Traversing the Arabian and African coasts he shows that the dhow was Discussing trade and salt routes, shoals and wind patterns, spice harvest seasons and the deep and resonant connection between language, memory and oral tradition, this is the first book to place the dhow in its full and remarkable cultural contexts.

Surveys are now taking place in the entire region and new excavations have begun in almost every country on the peninsula. This collection of articles on Arabian archaeology takes its place among many of the recent works on the subject and the articles presented here contribute with both materials and ideas to the field of study. Contributions range from palaeography and prehistory to the Islamic conquest.

Rome's Eastern Trade Gary K. Young, 2003-10-04. The spectacular ruins of such places as Palmyra and Petra bear witness to the wealth and power which could be derived from the silks, spices and incense of the east. Such goods were highly prized in the Roman Empire and merchants were ready to face the perils of deserts, oceans, warfare and piracy to meet the demand for their wares. But exactly how did the trade in luxury goods operate and to whose benefit? Gary K. Young's study offers unprecedented coverage of the major trading regions of Egypt, Arabia, Palmyra and Syria with detailed analysis of the routes used and of the roles of all the participants. He looks closely at the influence of the commerce in eastern goods both on the policy of the Roman imperial government and upon local communities in the East itself. His findings contradict the standard view that the imperial government had a strong political interest in the eastern trade; rather its primary concern was the tax income the trade brought in. He also demonstrates the need for greater recognition of the efforts made by local authorities to exploit the trade to their own advantage. Incorporating the considerable archaeological research that has been undertaken in recent years, this comprehensive survey provides fresh insight into an important aspect of the eastern Roman Empire.

A Companion to the Archaeology of the Ancient Near East D. T. Potts, 2012-08-15. A COMPANION TO THE ARCHAEOLOGY OF THE ANCIENT NEAR EAST. In addition to chapters devoted to specific regions and particular periods, many contributors concentrate on individual industries and major themes in ancient Near Eastern archaeology ranging from metallurgy and agriculture to irrigation and fishing Controversial issues including the nature and significance of the antiquities market ethical considerations in archaeological praxis the history of the foundation of departments of antiquities and ancient attitudes towards the past make this a unique collection of studies that will be of interest to scholars students and interested readers alike

Trade, Commerce, and the State in the Roman World Andrew Wilson, Alan Bowman, 2017-11-03 This volume presents eighteen papers by leading Roman historians and archaeologists discussing trade in the Roman Empire during the period c 100 BC to AD 350 It focuses especially on the role of the Roman state in shaping the institutional framework for trade within and outside the empire in taxing that trade and in intervening in the markets to ensure the supply of particular commodities especially for the city of Rome and for the army As part of a novel interdisciplinary approach to the subject the chapters address its myriad facets on the basis of broadly different sources of evidence historical papyrological and archaeological They are grouped into three sections covering institutional factors taxation legal structures market regulation financial institutions evidence for long distance trade within the empire in wood stone glass and pottery and trade beyond the frontiers with the east as far as China India Arabia the Red Sea and the Sahara Rome's external trade with realms to the east emerges as being of particular significance but it is in the eastern part of the empire itself where the state appears to have adapted the mechanisms of taxation in collaboration with the elite holders of wealth to support its need for revenue On the other hand the price of that collaboration which was in effect a fiscal partnership ultimately led in the longer term in slightly different forms in the east and the west to a fundamental change in the political character of the empire

Johnson, 1979 The results of the first season of archaeological excavations at the small port site of Quseir al Qadim on the Red Sea are presented in this volume Archaeological evidence testifies to the importance of this port then called Leukos Limen for the Roman trade in the Indian Ocean in the first and second centuries AD After a millennium of abandonment this trade was revived under the Mamluks thirteenth fourteenth centuries when the trade reached East Africa India and China This report presents copious illustrations of the artifacts of daily life in these two periods A chapter by Martha Prickett presents the detailed results of a regional survey around Quseir and along the route leading to Luxor and the Nile valley

Roads in the Deserts of Roman Egypt Maciej Paprocki, 2019-07-19 Egypt under the Romans 30 BCE 3rd century CE was a period when local deserts experienced an unprecedented flurry of activity In the Eastern Desert a marked increase in desert traffic came from imperial prospecting quarrying activities and caravans transporting wares to and from the Red Sea ports In the Western Desert resilient camels slowly became primary beasts of burden in desert travel enabling caravaneers to lengthen daily marching distances across previously inhospitable dunes Desert road archaeology has used satellite imaging landscape studies and network analysis to plot desert trail networks with greater accuracy however it is often difficult to date roadside installations and thus assess how these networks evolved in scope and density in reaction to climatic social and technological change Roads in the Deserts of Roman Egypt examines evidence for desert roads in Roman Egypt and assesses Roman influence on the road density in two select desert areas the central and southern section of the Eastern Desert and the central Marmarican Plateau and discusses geographical and social factors influencing road use in the period demonstrating that Roman overseers of these lands adapted remarkably well to local desert conditions improving roads and developing the trail network Crucially the author reconceptualises desert trails as linear corridor structures that follow expedient routes in the desert landscape passing through at least two functional nodes attracting human traffic be those water sources farmlands mines quarries trade hubs military installations or actual settlements The route of least resistance across the desert varied from period to period according to the available road infrastructure and beasts of burden employed Roman administration in Egypt not only increased the density of local desert node networks but also facilitated internodal connections with camel caravans and transformed the Sahara by establishing new or embellishing existing nodes effectively funnelling desert traffic into discernible corridors Significantly not all desert areas of Egypt are equally suited for anthropogenic development but almost all have been optimised in one way or another with road installations built for added comfort and safety of travellers Accordingly the study of how Romans successfully adapted to desert travel is of wider significance to the study of deserts and ongoing expansion due to global warming
