Tony Barta

Ship That Died Of Shame:

The ship that died of shame Nicholas Monsarrat,1967 The Ship that Died of Shame ,1954 The Ship that Died of Shame Nicholas Monsarrat,2014-04-22 Crime Mystery Adventure Thrills all to be found in this short story collection commencing with The Ship that Died of Shame where a former Navy gunboat is used for smuggling by ex servicemen down on their luck in post war society A further nine stories complete a volume which contains many twists and turns and hard hitting drama Structures of Desire Tony Williams,2000-08-10 Examines the cultural historical and ideological factors influencing British cinema during World War II and the postwar years with attention to male female relationships as well as to utopian desires for a better postwar world British War Films, 1939-1945 S. P. MacKenzie,2001-02-01 The cinema was the most popular form of entertainment during the Second World War Film was a critically important medium for influencing opinion Films such as In Which We Serve and One of Our Aircraft is Missing shaped the British people's perceptions of the conflict British War Films 1939 1945 is an account of the feature films produced during the war rather than government documentaries and official propaganda making the book an important index of British morale and values at a time of desperate national crisis Prosthetic Agency Gill Plain,2023-07-13 This book addresses the legacy of World War II on male identity and reinvention It considers some of the many ways in which popular culture of the time sought to mediate these difficult transitions exploring films popular fiction memoir and biography Short Story Index ,1965

The naval war film Jonathan Rayner,2013-07-19 This book undertakes a unique coherent and comprehensive consideration of the depiction of naval warfare in the cinema The films under discussion encompass all areas of naval operations in war and highlight varying institutional and aesthetic responses to navies and the sea in popular culture The examination of these films centres on their similarities to and differences from the conventions of the war genre and seeks to determine whether the distinctive characteristics of naval film narratives justify their categorisation as a separate genre or sub genre in popular cinema The explicit factual bases and drama documentary style of many key naval films such as In Which We Serve They Were Expendable and Das Boot also requires the consideration of these films as texts for popular historical transmission Their frequent reinforcement of establishment views of the past which derives from their conservative ideological position towards national and naval culture makes these films key texts for the consideration of national cinemas as purveyors of contemporary history as popularly conceived by filmmakers and received by audiences British Film Noir Guide Michael F. Keaney,2015-05-20 This work presents 369 British films produced between 1937 and 1964 that embody many of the same filmic qualities as those black films made in the United States during the classic film noir era This reference work makes a case for the inclusion of the British films in the film noir canon which is still considered by some to be an exclusively American inventory In the book's main section the following information is presented for each film a quote from the film the title and release date a rating based on the five star system the production company director cinematographer screenwriter and main performers and a plot synopsis with author commentary Appendices categorize films by rating release date director and cinematographer and also provide a noir and non noir breakdown of the 47 films presented on the Edgar Wallace Mystery Theatre a 1960s British television series that was also shown in the United States

Screening the Past Tony Barta, 1998-08-20 Film and television have been accepted as having a pervasive influence on how people understand the world An important aspect of this is the relationship of history and film The different views of the past created by film television and video are only now attracting closer attention from historians cultural critics and filmmakers This volume seeks to advance the critical exploration scholars have recently begun Barta begins by addressing the various ways the past is screened for our understanding and relates the art of film to other media The essays that follow deal primarily with the changing perspectives of political and social developments and changing concepts of ideology gender or culture in films and television programs made for historically shaped reasons Chapters by filmmakers explore issues of context and intent in their own projects Scholars and general readers interested in film and cultural studies will find this an important volume
