While its collection of state of the art ex post evaluation studies has a clear value for competition authorities, it is sure to be welcomed as well by competition law practitioners in the private sector who will greatly appreciate the effort made to cast a critical eye on decisions taken in the past. Moreover, it allows for addressing some of the new challenges facing competition policymakers. Fabienne Ilzkovitz is Principal Advisor responsible for the economic evaluation of competition policy within the Directorate General for Competition of the European Commission and since 2014 she has coordinated various ex post evaluation projects in the Directorate General. She is also Associate Professor of Economics in the Solvay Brussels School of Economics and Management at the Université Libre de Bruxelles, Belgium. The Cambridge Handbook of Competition Law Sanctions Tihamer Tóth, 2022-06-23

This handbook brings together an international roster of competition law scholars and practitioners to address the issue of sanctions in competition law from all angles. Covering nineteen jurisdictions around the world, the book analyzes the theoretical foundations and practice of sanctioning competition law infringements and most importantly cartels. Contributors include a range of experts drawing on criminal law, company law, labor law, human rights, and law and economics to determine what sanctions are available as a matter of positive law against corporations and individuals, including fines and other criminal, administrative, and civil law sanctions, whether law enforcers are using these sanctions effectively, and if new sanctions, including individual sanctions, should be introduced.

Summary, 1984 The Office of Fair Trading Great Britain. National Audit Office, 2009. The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) has improved its operations following recommendations on maintaining competition in markets made by the National Audit Office and Committee of Public Accounts in 2005 and 2006. It now needs to concentrate its efforts on strengthening the skills and experience of its staff at key management grades and be clearer on how long it expects its investigations will take. The OFT is now directing its work to areas that have the most impact, though this refocus on higher priority cases has led to a perception that the OFT is less interested in smaller markets, with a risk that its deterrent effect will be reduced in these markets. The OFT has taken steps to address this perception, launching investigations into more local markets such as in construction and bus transport. The time taken to process high profile cases has been reduced by introducing better project management and more flexible ways of working, including using bigger teams and temporary legal staff. The OFT has also brought criminal charges in two cartel cases for the first time under the Enterprise Act, one of which to date has resulted in criminal convictions. The OFT recognises that some of its cases are still taking too long. The OFT operates in a competitive labour market and still continues to face challenges in attracting and retaining talented staff. The OFT has provided project management and leadership training to its staff but it needs to sustain and increase this work in order to continue to recruit and retain staff at key management grades

Huber,2007-05-07 Are political understandings of bureaucracy incompatible with Weberian features of administrative neutrality In examining the question of whether interest groups and elected officials are able to influence how government agencies implement the law this book identifies the political origins of bureaucratic neutrality In bridging the traditional gap between questions of internal management public administration and external politics political science Huber argues that strategic neutrality allows bureaucratic leaders to both manage their subordinates and sustain political support By analyzing the OSH Act of 1970 Huber demonstrates the political origins and benefits of administrative neutrality and contrasts it with apolitical and unconstrained administrative implementation Historical analysis interviews with field level bureaucrats and their supervisors and quantitative analysis provide a rich understanding of the twin difficulties agency leaders face as political actors and personnel managers      Fish and Wildlife Miscellaneous United States.
