Meat Science Pb 1966:

Lawrie's Meat Science R. A. Lawrie, David Ledward, 2014-01-23 Lawrie's Meat Science has established itself as a standard work for both students and professionals in the meat industry. Its basic theme remains the central importance of biochemistry in understanding the production, storage, processing, and eating quality of meat. At a time when so much controversy surrounds meat production and nutrition, Lawrie's meat science, written by Lawrie in collaboration with Ledward, provides a clear guide which takes the reader from the growth and development of meat animals through the conversion of muscle to meat to the point of consumption. The seventh edition includes details of significant advances in meat science which have taken place in recent years, especially in areas of eating quality of meat and meat biochemistry. A standard reference for the meat industry. Discusses the importance of biochemistry in production, storage, and processing of meat. Includes significant advances in meat and meat biochemistry.

Lawrie's Meat Science, Sixth Edition Ralston Andrew Lawrie, 1998-07 Contents: Factors affecting the growth and development of meat animals: cattle, sheep, and pigs; The structure and growth of muscle; Chemical and biochemical constitution of muscle; The conversion of muscle to meat; The spoilage of meat by infecting organisms; The storage and preservation of meat; Temperature and moisture control and direct microbial inhibition; The eating quality of meat; Meat and human nutrition; Prefabricated meat. Processing of Poultry G. C.

Mead, 2012-12-06 Over the last 40 years, poultry meat production has undergone considerable expansion in much of the developed world. The industry has changed from an essentially farm-based operation to one where economies of scale in rearing and processing have led to a high degree of operational efficiency. As a sequel to these changes, however, there is now greater emphasis on product quality rather than mere production at least cost. Also, the more recent growth in further processed and value-added convenience items has helped to maintain a buoyant market for poultry and has shown that the industry can rapidly adapt to changing consumer needs and preferences. It is in the areas of primary processing and further processed product development that the greatest technological changes have occurred within the industry. Processing in particular has become more mechanical so that most stages in the production of oven-ready carcasses or cut portions are now either semi or fully automated, thus reducing labour costs and helping to maximise the speed and efficiency of the process. However, not all of the changes that have taken place have necessarily been in the best interests of maintaining product quality, e.g. in relation to meat tenderness and microbial contamination, and it is essential for any processor to understand fully the effects of processing on all aspects of meat quality, including the efficacy of possible control measures.
