Youakim, 2021-06-17 Just like people around the world have done for generations Arab people from the Middle East and North African MENA region have immigrated to various nations around the world A number of push factors account for why groups have left their homeland and pulled to another nation to settle The history and patterns of Arab migration out of the MENA illustrates the wide array of reasons for these patterns primarily illustrating that mass emigration and settlement are highly linked to a number of factors including social political economic familial climates of each nation state and its policies If it is one takeaway that this edited volume brings to light it is that the Arab MENA does not only include a diverse population within each nation state it also illustrates the ways in which their settlement in new nations have contributed to their own identity development patterns their communities and that of their new nation state This book celebrates the achievements and acknowledges the challenges of the new communities that Arabs have built around the world It shows examples of societies that have embraced the Arab diaspora as well as examples of sidelining these communities These examples come from a number of subject areas from music to international affairs The examples are both contemporary and historical authored by individuals with a diverse set of disciplinary lenses and professional training This book is meant to fill a gap in the literature as it expands on the understanding of Arab communities to inform and inspire a more nuanced inclusive approach to the study of the Arab diaspora It does so by revealing untold stories that challenge stereotypes to push for more inclusive media

Matos,2009-01-14 In late 1945 Australia eagerly put up its hand to join the American led military occupation of war devastated Japan the old enemy was still hated yet the Australian involvement was motivated by ideals of democratic reconstruction rather than retribution In the age of Iraq when Australia has again participated in a US occupation of a rogue non Western state humbled in war it is time to consider troubling questions surrounding the nation s engagement in contentious overseas occupations Can Western conceptions of democracy be imposed militarily on other societies To what extent has Australia s willingness to support the United States been an expression of independent policy making or meek acquiescence in the neocolonial imperatives of the global superpower How do occupations differ When does intervention become occupation To what extent are entrenched cultural attitudes to race and religion a factor in decisions to occupy and on how these occupations are perceived at home And how has the Australian media influenced public attitudes to these ventures This collection of essays by leading Australian academics and commentators places Australia s historical role as an occupier on the critical map Now as the country juggles complex national regional and international alliances and obligations this conversation is as compelling as it is belated The Making and Unmaking of a Zionist Antony Lerman,2012-08-06

Project Censored Guide to Independent Media and Activism Peter Phillips,2003-08-05 The independent media are arguably more important than ever today as corporate media s line reads increasingly like a government press release rather than a free society s analysis of the day s important events But there s a lot to sort through Independent newsmagazines and newspapers local cable TV access and independent and microtransmitted radio are everywhere offering a vast array of news opinions and information New Indymedia activists alone now have direct links to more than sixty five grassroots news sites around the world The challenge we are faced with is two fold We must make these news sources widely accessible but we must also find ways to compile sort and collectively release this real news to millions of people a project that this invaluable guide for diversifying your access to information can make much more achievable

Shooting the Messenger Paul L. Moorcraft,Philip M. Taylor,2008-06-30 As the literature on military media relations grows it is informed by antagonism either from journalists who report on wars or from ex soldiers in their memoirs Academics who attempt more judicious accounts rarely have any professional military or media experience A working knowledge of the operational constraints of both professions underscores Shooting the Messenger A veteran war correspondent and think tank director Paul L Moorcraft has served in the British Ministry of Defence while historian by training Philip M Taylor is a professor of international communications who has lectured widely to the U S military and at NATO institutions Some of the topics they examine in this wide ranging history of military media relations are the interface between soldiers and civilian reporters covering conflicts the sometimes grey area between reporters right or need to know and the operational security constraints imposed by the military the military s manipulation of journalists who accept it as a trade off for safer battlefield access the resultant gap between images of war and their reality the evolving nature of media technology and the difficulties and opportunities this poses to the military journalistic performance in reporting conflict as an observer or a participant Moorcraft and Taylor provide a bridge over which each side can pass and a path to mutual understanding

Gurus and Oracles Miklos Sarvary, 2011-12-16 An examination of the information industry from Reuters to Facebook and the special characteristics of information and knowledge markets We live in an Information Age of overabundant data and lightning fast transmission Yet although information and knowledge represent key factors in most economic decisions we often forget that data information and knowledge are products created and traded within the knowledge economy In Gurus and Oracles Miklos Sarvary describes the information industry the far flung universe of companies whose core business is to sell information to decision makers These companies include such long established firms as Thomson Reuters which began in 1850 with carrier pigeons relaying stock market news as well as newer dominant players like Google and Facebook Sarvary highlights the special characteristics of information and knowledge and analyzes the unusual behaviors of the markets for them He shows how technology contributes to the spectacular growth of this sector and how new markets for information change our economic environment Research in economics business strategy and marketing has shown that information is different from other goods and services this is especially true in competitive settings and may result in strange competitive market outcomes For example Sarvary points out unreliable information may be more expensive than reliable information information sellers may be better off inviting competitors into their market because this may allow them to increase their prices and competition may lead to increased media bias but this may benefit consumers who want to discover the truth In Gurus and Oracles Sarvary explores the implications of these and other peculiarities for information buyers and sellers
