Media And Politics In Japan:

Media and Politics in Japan Susan Pharr, Ellis S. Krauss, 1996-03-01 Japan is one of the most media saturated societies in the world. The circulations of its big five national newspapers dwarf those of any major American newspaper. Its public service broadcasting agency NHK is second only to the BBC in size. And it has a full range of commercial television stations, high brow and low brow magazines, and a large anti-mainstream media and mini-media. Japanese elites rate the mass media as the most influential group in Japanese society. But what role do they play in political life? Whose interests do the media serve? Are the media mainly servants of the state or are they watchdogs on behalf of the public? And what effects do the media have on the political beliefs and behavior of ordinary Japanese people? These questions are the focus of this collection of essays by leading political scientists, sociologists, social psychologists, and journalists. Japan's unique kisha press club system, its powerful media business organizations, the uses of the media by Japan's wily bureaucrats, and the role of the media in everything from political scandals to shaping public opinion are among the many subjects of this insightful and provocative book.

Media, Politics and Environment Detlef Briesen,Sarada Prasanna Das,2023-07-15 Environmental protection has not equally established itself as a permanent fixture in the political systems of all countries to date governments and entire societies have responded to environmental challenges in a variety of ways and concrete environmental policy is still a highly national matter Moreover the perception of environmental problems varies considerably on a global scale The reasons normally cited for these differences largely stem from the environmental policy debates themselves e g poverty ignorance capital interests etc In contrast this book shows that concrete environmental policy emerges from a complex interplay of mass media and political conflicts first the mass media provide the framework for national environmental policy through agenda setting framing and scandalization second the mass media thereby change values in the political and social discourse e g by altering the perception of global commons and expanding the possibilities of interest articulation and third this can lead to political decision making processes in which legal and other measures for environmental protection are enforced The book systematically compares industrialized countries such as Germany and Japan with several rapidly emerging countries in South and Southeast Asia
