

CHAPTER 1

Recipient Reactions to Aid: The Parameters of the Field

Jeffrey D. Fisher

Spurred by the Kitty Genovese incident and other sociopolitical aspects of the 1960s, the past 20 years have seen an explosion of research on helping behavior. Most of this work has tried to identify situational and personality factors that elicit prosocial acts—a focus that at first blush seems eminently reasonable. To date, a dominant theme in the prosocial behavior literature is reflected in the title of Latané and Darley's (1970) book The Unresponsive Bystander: Why Doesn't He Help? By contrast, a subtitle for this book could be The Ungrateful Recipient: Why Doesn't He or She Respond More Favorably to Aid?

Research on help-giving reflects the dominant belief in our culture that helping others is a good thing that should be encouraged. However, one can probably recall many contexts in which being helped is anything but good. In both interpersonal and international relations there are many examples of recipients "biting the hand that feeds them." Pleasant events do not usually occasion such responses. Most social psychological research has

New Directions In Helping Vol 1 Recipient Reactions To Aid:

New Directions in Helping Jeffery Fisher, 1983-01-28 New Directions in Helping Recipient Reactions to Aid Volume 1 reviews the state of knowledge in the reactions of recipients in helping interactions. It provides an overview of the entire field in depth coverage in major areas and a preview of important future research directions. The book is organized into five parts. Part I discusses the types of recipient reactions, some consistent relationships between the conditions associated with recipient reactions, and approaches that have been used to conceptualize the effects of aid on those who receive it. Part II focuses on theoretical perspectives for conceptualizing reactions to help. Part III examines individual differences in responses to aid. Part IV takes up various determinants of reactions to help. Part V presents some final thoughts about research on reactions to help. This book will be of interest to social psychologists as well as to members of a number of other disciplines, e.g., clinical psychologists, social workers, counseling psychologists, educational psychologists, political scientists, and sociologists. New Directions in Helping: Applied perspectives on help-seeking and -receiving Jeffrey D. Fisher, Arie Nadler, Bella M. DePaulo, 1983. New Directions in Helping Jeffrey D. Fisher, Arie Nadler, Bella M. DePaulo, 1983. Handbook of Behavior Therapy in Education S.N. Elliott, F. Gresham, J.C. Witt, 2013-11-11. What do we know about behavioral analysis and intervention in educational settings? Given that educational institutions were among the first to embrace the new technology of behavior change in the late 1950s and early 1960s, it is apparent that we have had the opportunity to learn a great deal. The evolution of the field of behavior therapy has witnessed a change in the behavior therapist from an adolescent fascination with repeatedly demonstrating the effectiveness of the new technology to a mature recognition of the complex implications of the behavioral paradigm for individuals, systems, and society. Many facts now taken for granted were considered impossibilities a mere two decades ago. In her 1986 presidential address to Division 25 of the American Psychological Association, Beth Sulzer-Azaroff reviewed a number of changes in attitude in education that were strongly influenced by behavior therapy. Most educators now agree that a) everyone can learn, b) complex skills can be taught, c) precise general and durable performance can be taught, and d) barriers to learning can be overcome. In addition, we would add that behavior therapy is being applied to increasingly more complex human problems such as social skill deficits, internalizing disorders, and dysfunctional systems and organizations. Early Childhood Intervention Hanan Sukkar, Carl Dunst, Jane Kirkby, 2016-12-01. Early childhood is considered a critical but often vulnerable period in a child's development where early identification and intervention can be crucial for improving children's developmental outcomes. Systems and family-centred perspectives are vital to support families and build their capacities to lead normalized lives with improved family quality of life. This book explores the family-centred practices and systems factors which influence families' experiences raising children with complex needs. It also considers the ways in which professionals can work with families to build and support parent and child competence. Conceptual and practical work from Australia, Canada, Europe, and the United States present descriptions of and implications for different family system frameworks and early childhood programs Contributors in this edited volume bring together contemporary information that bridges the research to practice gap in supporting families of young children with disabilities or delays Chapters include Early Intervention for Young Children with Developmental Delays Contributions of the Developmental Systems Approach Family Composition and Family Needs in Australia What Makes a Family Working with Families in Early Childhood Intervention Family Centred Practices in an Individualised Funding Landscape Family Systems and Family Centred Intervention Practices in Portugal and Spain Iberian Reflections on Early Childhood Intervention This book will attract the attention scholars of Parenting and Families Child Development and Childcare

Psychotherapy with Older Men Tammi Vacha-Haase, Stephen R. Wester, Heidi Fowell Christianson, 2011-01-19 Growing older can be a time of great joy and satisfaction for men as they look back on their accomplishments and gain more free time but it can also be a challenging and distressing experience especially for those men raised with the very traditional notions of what it means to be a real man This book will help practitioners working with older and aging men understand the eras in which these men were raised how they view the world the gender role conflicts they experience and the physical mental and emotional challenges and problems they face during the later stages of their lives The authors discuss theories of masculinity and aging and therapeutic considerations for working with this special population Making use of many detailed case studies they explore the psychological issues that are commonly faced by older men such as depression anxiety cognitive impairment and substance use and abuse as well as effective screening and assessment techniques and treatment approaches They then conclude with
