poets to enlist the sympathies of a putative audience convince them of the justice of their indignation and the legitimacy of their personal attacks The mocking satirist at the height of his power remains elusive and paradoxical a figure of self constructed abjection yet arrogant and sarcastic at the same time a figure whose speech can be self righteous one moment but scandalous the next who will insist on the reality of his poetry but make it clear that this reality is always mediated by an inescapable movement towards fictionality While scholars have often in principle acknowledged the force of irony persona construction and other such devices by which satirists destabilize their claims very often in practice especially when considering individual satirists in isolation from others they too succumb to the satirist s invitation to take what he says at face value Despite the sophisticated critical tools they may bring to bear on satirical texts therefore classicists still tend to treat such poets ultimately as monochromatically indignant vindictive individuals on a genuine self righteous mission This study however argues that that a far subtler analysis of the aggressive poeticized subject in Classical antiquity its target and its audience is called for
