Kowalski, 2003 Harvard educated theologian Gary Kowalski argues that many of the ills of the modern world from the rise of fundamentalist intolerance to secular society's endless and empty search for thrills stem from the mistaken view that science and faith are antagonists rather than natural allies Both science and faith the author suggests compel us now to move beyond materialism toward an understanding of the world that includes the realities of consciousness and spirit In the twenty-first century human beings have less reason than before to feel they hold a privileged or special position in the cosmos but more cause than ever to feel connected and akin to all that is Christians and Jews skeptics and seekers alike will find that this brief persuasively written volume sheds new light on the old questions Who are we Where do we figure in the larger scheme of things And what can we honestly believe Great Essays in Science Martin Gardner, 1957 Literature for Science and Mathematics DIANE Publishing Company, 1998 Representing the perspectives of educators in both the science and mathematics communities this publication is intended to serve as a resource for teachers of students in kindergarten through grade 12 in choosing science and mathematics related literature for their schools and classrooms It contains over 1,000 annotated entries on the physical sciences earth sciences life sciences and mathematics Formatted for easy use each entry provides information on the author publisher and publication date type of literature subject emphasis suggested grade span and illustrations Gaither's Dictionary of Scientific Quotations Carl C.
