A frightening vision of the future and a deeply unsettling one, a sober scary book that not only limns the dangers posed by emerging diseases but also raises serious questions about two centuries worth of Enlightenment beliefs in science and technology and progress.

Michiko Kakutani The New York Times At Home in the World Donald Capps, 2013-09-26 The emotional separation of boys from their mothers in early childhood enables them to connect with their fathers and their fathers' world. But this separation also produces a melancholic reaction of sadness and sense of loss. Certain religious sensibilities develop out of this melancholic reaction including a sense of honor, a sense of hope, and a sense of humor. Realizing that they cannot return to their original maternal environment, men, whether knowingly or not, embark on a lifelong search for a sense of being at home in the world. At Home in the World focuses on works of art as a means to explore the formation and continuing expression of men's melancholy selves and their religious sensibilities. These explorations include such topics as male viewers' mixed feelings toward the maternal figure, physical settings that offer alternatives to the maternal environment, and the maternal resonances of the world of nature. By presenting images of the natural world as the locus of peace and contentment, At Home in the World especially reflects of the religious sensibility of hope.

Biographies and Miscellaneous Papers Washington Irving, 1867 Biographies and Miscellaneous Papers, 1867 India-South Asia Interface Partha S. Ghosh, 2021-12-22 India-South Asia Interface raises the fundamental question: How does one make sense of South Asia? Conventional wisdom defines it primarily in terms of regional and international politics. The failures of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC) are emblematic of that wisdom. Marking a departure from such approaches, Partha Ghosh makes the case that more than merely a political construct, South Asia must be understood as a shared social consciousness. Through chapters that explore topics such as threats to democracy, religion, and politics, the place of Kashmir, different conceptions of regionalism, the roles of America and China, and the issue of refugees and migrants, he demonstrates that there is no escape from reinventing the region from a people's perspective. Only this way can South Asia retrieve its soul and replace its cynicism and despair with expectation and hope. Based primarily on Ghosh's research articles and newspaper columns written over the last five years, the volume can be viewed as an intimate statement of his understanding of the region, an understanding that has matured through decades-long interactions with the region's academics, politicians, and the so-called man on the street. In some sense, the volume is also a semi-autobiographical treatise which spells out Ghosh's systematic evolution as a confirmed South Asianist. The region's destiny ought to be wrested from the hands of its political leaders and returned to the common men and women of the region. Organizing the Curriculum ,2019-02-11 Contemporary American youth live in a culture that ignores or denigrates labor unions Mainstream media cover labor issues only sparingly and unions no longer play much of a role in popular culture texts films or images In our schools labor has been limited to a footnote in textbooks instead of being treated seriously as the most effective force for championing the rights of working people the vast majority of the citizenry Teachers have been convinced that to bring up class or to teach about the labor movement may be construed as taking sides while the all pervasive presence of corporate America in our schools is rarely questioned So for all the talk of schools preparing young people for the work world we are failing to teach them even the basics of how that world is structured or how they can be empowered through collective action Organizing the Curriculum Perspectives on Teaching the US Labor Movement is the
