Handbook of Adult Development Jack Demick, Carrie Andreoletti, 2012-12-06 This volume is an outgrowth of contemporary research on development over the adult lifespan which by now has burgeoned and developed both nationally and internationally However for us the impetus to be involved in this area was spawned and nurtured by our initial association with the Society for Research in Adult Development SRAD with its origins some 15 years ago by Michael Commons and his associates in Cambridge Massachusetts Through the good will and support of this society we also became and are still heavily involved with the Journal of Adult Development and the Kluwer Plenum Monograph Series on Adult Development and Aging of which this volume is a companion Many of the contributions in the volume are from SRAD members who consistently adhere to a focus on positive adult development Their chapters have been complemented by pieces from other researchers who have adopted more mainstream approaches to adult development and aging Regardless of the particular approach and or focus of the chapter all the work reported herein supports the relatively recent idea that development is not restricted to children and adolescents but continues throughout the adult lifespan in ways that we never envisioned some 20 years ago Thus the volume represents state of the art theory research and practice on adult development which has the potential to occupy us all for some time to come

Making Meaning of Loss Richard L. Hayes, 2022-10-31 Making Meaning of Loss Change and Challenge Across the Lifespan is about how change brings loss to our lives how we make meaning of loss and how our experience with loss directs our encounters with loss in the future Each loss challenges us in this way to rethink our world view to ask who we have become and to reinvent ourselves anew Taking a lifespan approach Hayes examines how we make sense of the losses that change brings in each period of our lives and how the way in which we meet the challenge that each loss brings directs our encounters with loss in the future In addition he provides suggestions for how earlier losses can become fruitful allies in encounters with change in the present and how caregivers can help others to make meaning of the loss in their lives Above all this book is about how caregivers can help others learn from the losses in their lives and to recognize what part of the past to bring along into the present in constructing a more reliable self for meeting the challenges of an uncertain future

Making Meaning Richard L. Hayes, 2020-06-15 This integrative book brings forty years of research and scholarship in counseling psychology and education together in a singular analysis In Making Meaning Hayes illustrates how the construction of meaning can have a profound effect on how we come to know ourselves and others Hayes depicts meaning making as an ongoing dialectical and recursive process of change and reinvention This process plays a central role in individual development and loss and helps promote multiculturalism collaboration and group and team development This book is recommended for mental health professionals and educators looking to promote democratic learning communities Adult Development, Therapy, and Culture Gerald D. Young, 2013-06-29 This volume proposes a theoretical integration of several major streams in contemporary psychological theory about adult development and therapy. It adopts the perspective that there are steps in development throughout the adult period and that they are characterized by a union of the cognitive and affective self and the other and idea with idea in second order collective abstractions. That is, they are at once postformal in terms of Piaget's theory, sociocultural in terms of Vygotsky's theory, and postmodern with the latter perspective providing an integrating theme. The affirmative, multivoiced, contextual, relational, other sensitive side of postmodernism is emphasized. Levinas's philosophy of responsibility for the other is seen as congruent with this ethos. The neopiagetian model of development on which the current approach is based proposes that the last stage in development concerns collective intelligence or postmodern postformal thought. Kegan (1994) has attempted independently to describe adult development from the same perspective. His work on the development of the postmodern mind of the adult is groundbreaking and impressive in its depth. However, I analyze the limitations as well as the contributions of his approach under scoring the advantages of my particular model.

Psychotherapy as a Developmental Process Michael Basseches, Michael F. Mascolo, 2009-08-05 For all those engaged in psychotherapy practice regardless of modality or approach, the goal of this book is to provide a framework and method for thinking about their work that allows for critical reflection on their own successes and disappointments and on the similarities and differences among their own and other practitioners' work with different clients. The authors use a novel common factors approach based on the idea that some form of development is the outcome of all effective psychotherapy despite other differences that may exist. While most existing psychotherapy research focuses on treatment outcomes primarily in terms of symptom reduction, this book offers an alternative research approach that systematically tracks the psychotherapy process itself and describes each case's unique developmental outcome. In particular, Basseches and Mascolo focus on the questions of what kinds of therapeutic resources therapists are offering to their clients and whether and how clients are able to make use of these resources in the service of their own development. The goal is to provide a descriptive framework that can be used to appreciate the highly varied ways in which particular therapists tailor their work to unique clients' developmental needs while at the same time offering a prescription of a more rigorous method for recognizing and correcting the problem when a particular therapist's way of working is not serving the client well. Ideally, this type of process focused research will complement existing outcome research and be more likely than further symptom reduction studies to result in the improvement of overall psychotherapy success rates.

Career Counseling Larry Cochran, 1997-04-08 While personality traits and talents may help to predict a predisposition to a career type, this method of analysis neglects the influences of human purpose, passion, and life history. In Career Counseling, author Larry Cochran fills the void by introducing the theory of narrative construction, a method of counseling that injects personal identity into career development in a practical way. Cochran demonstrates how literary models and constructivist methods can be used in career development to provide the essential subjective dimension that has been lacking in practical counseling. In addition, he provides the innovative materials that are necessary for making this process both efficient and effective. This volume will be widely used by scholars and professionals in the fields of career counseling, clinical counseling psychology, social psychology, and management.

The Future of Career Audrey Collin, Richard A. Young, 2000-08-10. The fragmented nature of modern working life is leading to fundamental changes in our understanding of the term career. Few people now expect to have a lifetime of continuous employment regardless of their qualifications or the sector they work in. This book presents a kaleidoscopic view of the concept of career, reviewing its past and considering its future. International specialists in psychology, sociology, counselling, education, and human resource management offer a multi-layered examination of career theories and practice, identifying the major changes taking place in the world of work that are challenging and extending the meaning of the word career. The overall aim is to redefine it in ways that are relevant to the newly emerging network society of the 21st century. The chapters are wide-ranging, exploring topics such as the changing contexts of career, individual career experiences, women's careers, multicultural issues, and implications for practice and policy making.

Spirituality and Health Augustine Meier, Thomas St. James O'Connor, Peter L. VanKatwyk, 2006-01-01. Spirituality and Health: Multidisciplinary Explorations examines the relationship between health, well-being, and spirituality. Chaplains and pastoral counsellors offer evidence-based research on the importance of spirituality in holistic health care, and practitioners in the fields of occupational therapy, clinical psychology, nursing, and oncology share how spirituality enters into their healing practices. Unique for its diversity, this collection explores the relationship between biomedical, psychological, and spiritual points of view about health and healing.

Handbook of Adult Development and Learning Carol Hoare, 2006. Adult development and learning have always existed as two separate fields of study, with development falling under psychology and learning under education. Recent advances in theory, research, and practice, however, have made it clear that an important reciprocal relationship exists between them. Advances in development frequently lead to learning, and conversely, learning quite often fuels development. The synchronicity between development and learning is responsible for positive changes in many capacities, including insight, intelligence, reflective and meta-cognition, personality expression, interpersonal competence, and self-efficacy. This synchronicity is also leading to the growth of a new discipline at the borders of adult development and learning. The Handbook of Adult Development and Learning is the first to bring together the leading scholars from both adult development and learning to explore what will form the foundation for this new discipline: the latest research at the intersection of these fields. It examines six major aspects of their intersection: foundations, key areas of integration, the self-system, higher reaches of development, and learning.

essential contexts and specific applications An introductory chapter explains why it is so important to recognize and fuel the growth of this new discipline Subsequent chapters review the latest theoretical and empirical literature and provide a rich itinerary for future research This handbook is a must read for all who promote optimal aging It will be an invaluable reference for scholars in development and education as well as rich resource for policy makers and practitioners such as corporate executives and human resource personnel
