departments and agencies Vector Calculus in Regional Development Analysis Kesra Nermend,2009-04-29 Methods used for regional development analysis are employed mainly to make forecasts and comparisons Forecasting models of various types e g econometric models are usually used for forecasting Recently vector autoregressive models VAR have become popular These models were proposed by Sims in 1980 On the contrary taxonomic methods that are in the center of attention as far as the present publication is concerned are most often employed to make comparisons Linear ordering methods including standard methods are the most popular among ta nomic methods They are based on different distance and similarity measures which leads to the fact that they do not always provide reliable information When for example one construes the standard for a base year and then compares it with data for other years it may turn out that the measure determined will have worse values than the standard for a real object region micro region although this object is better from the standard Hence one must look for new methods employed in regional development analysis or improve hitherto existing ones in such a way so that information obtained re flects the reality to a larger extent The main aim of the present publication is to work out methodological basis for regional development analysis based on vector calculus together with assumptions

Higher Education Michael T. Nietzel,2018-10-01 The American university faces many challenges It has become too costly and inefficient It fails too many students It spends too much time and money on matters that should not be its priorities It clings to policies and practices that need to go away And it is too disconnected from the students and communities it must serve This book proposes several changes to standard policies in our colleges and universities that will sharpen their missions redirect funding to the highest priorities improve student learning and attainment redefine faculty engagement slow down spending on amenities and reduce the excesses of intercollegiate athletics The recommended reforms remain true to the essential academic values embraced by the academy but at the same time they recognize and respond to the new realities facing higher education
