Measuring And Managing Knowledge:

Measuring and Managing Knowledge Thomas J. Housel, Arthur Henry Bell, 2001 Measuring and Managing Knowledge provides a framework for managing and maximizing the return on intellectual capital Like any emerging field knowledge management has so far been hobbled by a lack of clarity on key questions What do we mean by knowledge How can it be measured and managed How can return on knowledge ROK be maximized To answer these questions the authors avoid the obtuse language of sociology and economics in favor of plain talk They weave the central insights of the growing body of knowledge management literature and their own research into a clear compelling story of what knowledge management is at present and will become in the years ahead

The Intellectual Capital of Schools Anthony Kelly, 2004-02-29 A teacher may get good even astounding results from his pupils while he is teaching them and yet not be a good teacher because it may be that while his pupils are directly under his influence he raises them to a height which is not natural to them without fostering their own capacities for work at this level so that they immediately decline again as soon as the teacher leaves the classroom Ludwig Wittgenstein 1889 1951 It is difficult to measure effectiveness in not for profit organisations like schools colleges and universities There is no bottom line against which to gauge performance they have limited technical development and managers struggle to make meaningful comparisons between outcomes and targets In education well publicised attempts have been made to establish some would say impose a set of criteria by which organisations judge success or failure These have been largely subjective the percentage of inspected classes regarded as good the extent to which staff is involved in decision making the appropriateness of the leadership shown by senior managers and so on if occasionally peppered with quantitative measures like the percentage of students achieving certain grades in public examinations to sustain the illusion of objectivity This is not to fault the aspiration necessarily though initially at least it created a surveillance culture in schools that did justice to neither the inspected nor the argument for inspection Happily this is changing
