Courting Science Damon V. Coletta, 2016-05-25 In Courting Science Damon Coletta offers a novel explanation for the decline of American leadership in world affairs Whether the American Century ends sooner rather than later may depend on America s capacity for self reflection and ultimately self restraint when it comes to science technology and engineering Democracy s affinity for advanced technology has to be balanced against scientific research and progress as a global enterprise In an era of rising challengers to America s lead in the international order and an increasingly globalized civil society a Scientific State has a better chance of extending its dominance In order to draw closer to this ideal though the United States will have to reconsider its grand strategy It must have a strategy that scrutinizes how tightly it constrains how narrowly it directs and how far it trusts American scientists If given the opportunity scientists have the potential to lead a second American Century through domestic science and technology policy international diplomacy and transnational networks for global governance

The Architecture of Security in the Asia-Pacific Ronald Huiskens, 2009-10-01 We cannot expect in East Asia over the foreseeable future to see the sort of conflation of sovereign states that has occurred in Europe We must anticipate that for the foreseeable future the requirement will be for the sensible management and containment of competitive instincts The establishment of a multilateral security body in East Asia that includes all the key players and which the major powers invest with the authority to tackle the shaping of the regional security order remains a critical piece of unfinished business Planning for Protraction Iskander Rehman, 2023-11-09 As Sino US relations have deteriorated concerns have grown in Washington over its ability to defeat China in a major conflict A conflict between such peer competitors would likely become a protracted war of attrition drawing on all dimensions of national power but this reality has yet to receive a sufficient degree of analytical attention In this Adelphi book Iskander Rehman provides a historically informed and empirically grounded study of protracted great power war its core drivers and characteristics and an examination of the elements that have most often determined a competitor's long term strategic performance Final victory in a protracted conflict this book argues rests on a combination of three core factors a state's military effectiveness and adaptability its socio economic power and resiliency and the soundness of its alliance management and grand strategy A detailed analysis of the contemporary Sino US rivalry assesses how both parties might fare in the event of a protracted war while highlighting some of its key differentiating aspects most notably its nuclear and cyber dimensions policy and East Asian international affairs Regional Leadership in the Global System Daniel Flesher, 2016-04-08 We assume that the ideas interests and strategies of regional powers are highly significant variables with the power to influence foreign policy Yet while comparative research projects involving OECD countries are fairly common comparative research integrating developing regions is still rare despite the fact that these countries are among the key actors of the twenty first century This collection emphasizes the role of regional powers in intra regional interregional and global contexts analyzing the rise of regional powers from a comparative perspective In so doing the book explains how these powers have power to shape regional and global politics Measuring National Power in the Postindustrial Age ,2000 The arrival of postindustrial society has given rise to the suspicion that the traditional bases of national power have been fundamentally transformed and as such that the indices used to measure the relative power of national should be reassessed as well This suspicion has special resonance given the fact that countries like the Soviet Union and Iraq classified as relatively significant powers by some aggregate indicators of capability either collapsed through internal enervation or proved utterly ineffectual when their capabilities were put to the test in war Containing Tehran Seth G. Jones, 2020-02-28 Following the U S killing of Qasem Soleimani head of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps Quds Force IRGC QF the United States and Iran are involved in an escalating conflict What is badly needed now is a coherent long term U S strategy to deal with Iran in ways that protect U S national security and leverage U S partners The United States maximum pressure campaign has not led to a change in Iran s behavior at least not yet though U S sanctions have severely damaged Iran s economy As this CSIS report highlights with new data and analysis the IRGC QF has supported a growing number of non state fighters in Yemen Syria Iraq Lebanon Afghanistan and Pakistan including nearly a 50 percent increase since 2016 Thanks to Iran these forces are better equipped with more sophisticated weapons and systems This report also uses satellite imagery to identify an expansion of IRGC QF linked bases in countries like Iran and Lebanon to train non state fighters Iran has constructed more sophisticated and longer range ballistic and cruise missiles and conducted missile attacks against countries like Saudi Arabia In addition Iran has developed offensive cyber capabilities and used them against the United States and its partners In the nuclear arena Iran has ended commitments it made to limit uranium enrichment production research and expansion raising the prospect of Iranian nuclear weapons Moving forward the United States should implement a containment strategy against Iran that attempts to de escalate the current military situation and work toward achieving several goals Prevent Iran from becoming a regional hegemon capable of dominating other states in the Middle East Stop nuclear proliferation in the region and prevent Iran from developing nuclear weapons including thwarting Iran from pursuing weapons grade uranium enrichment warhead development and plutonium reprocessing Curb significant Iranian military political and ideological expansion in the region including the export of Iran s revolutionary ideology Encourage a process of change inside Iran toward a more pluralistic political and economic system in which the power of the clerical establishment is gradually reduced

This report highlights a range of weaknesses that make Iran vulnerable to containment and lays out the political military economic and informational components of such a strategy The United States needs to credibly demonstrate that its policy toward Iran is not a blueprint for an endless struggle but instead an effort to encourage Iran to be more democratic and open as political and economic change must be driven by Iranians themselves Economic Developments In India : Monthly Update, Volume -86 Analysis, Reports, Policy Documents Editors : Raj Kapila & Uma Kapila,2005
