

However, parental grief was addressed more directly by consolation treatises, works composed of Qur²anic citations, hadith, anecdotes, and stories designed to assure the bereaved that they were not alone in their tragedy and sorrow. This accounts for what Gil²adi feels is the works' "impersonal character" (p. 86), which might more appropriately be called their "universal appeal." The consolation treatises attempt to channel the tumultuous emotions provoked by the death of a loved one into theologically and socially appropriate modes of behavior. Hence, they counsel patience and trust in God and discourage excessive outbursts of emotion, which might be construed as skepticism or ingratitude regarding the divine promise of a life in paradise after death.

Gil²adi is to be congratulated on shedding light on this little known genre of Arabic consolation literature, and this section is certainly original and thought provoking. However, his discussion might have been even more interesting if he had compared this literature to the large body of consolation tracts composed in the post-Civil War United States, of which Gil²adi seems totally unaware (p. 12) (see Ann Douglas, "Heaven Our Home: Consolation Literature in the Northern United States," American Quarterly 26 [1974]).

Unfortunately, this section ends with a tedious and highly speculative discussion of possible pre-Islamic child sacrifice and post-Islamic instances of infanticide. Yet, despite several weak essays and occasional oversights (children were sometimes given tombstones; elegies for children were far more common than Gil²adi seems to suggest), Children of Islam will serve as a useful reference work for Islamicists and historians interested in the subject, particularly given Gil²adi's extensive notes and bibliography, which account for over 50 of the book's 175 pages.

However, for non-Arabists concerned with the history of childhood, the often technical nature of this work may prove daunting. Gil²adi might have avoided this and strengthened his book considerably had he added a chapter on the earliest major Islamic discussions of children (particularly in medical works), placed his essay on tahnik in an appendix, and blended his final two essays into a larger one on death and mourning. Finally, non-Arabists might have appreciated a full translation of al-Ghazali's section on education; the edited Arabic text is only three pages long.

REVIEWED BY MAHMOOD IBRAHIM, Department of History, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona

The connection between Islam and commerce has been as well recognized by the present generation of Islamic scholars as it was at the turn of the century. Sira and Futuhat literature are full of references to commerce, commodities, commercial institutions, and practices, that testify to the role played by merchants and their capital in Meccan society. Merchants and their capital therefore also participated in creating the conditions that led to the rise of Islam. It has become axiomatic that commerce in the region thrived to an unprecedented degree with Islam and that merchants played an important part in the region's economy and in the elaboration of Islamic culture. Simon's book Meccan Trade and Islam provides another attempt to explain why this was so.

Although much of the book was written nearly twenty years ago, it is still useful. Especially part I, which discusses the history of pre-Islamic Arabia. Simon successfully integrates the history of the Arabian peninsula into the framework of contemporary history and describes developments in the political and economic life in Arabia. Using an impressive

Poverty and Charity in Middle Eastern Contexts Michael Bonner,Mine Ener,Amy

Singer,2012-02-01 Offering insights and analysis in a field that has only recently come into existence this book explores the ideals and institutions through which Middle Eastern societies from the rise of Islam in the seventh century C E to the present day have confronted poverty and the poor By introducing new sources and presenting familiar ones with new questions the contributors examine ideas about poverty and the poor ideals and practices of charity and state and private initiatives of poor relief over this extensive time span They avoid easy generalizations about Islam and the Middle East as they seek to set the ideals and practices in comparative perspective

Charlemagne, Muhammad, and the Arab Roots of Capitalism Gene William Heck,2008-08-22 Presented in six principal analytic chapters with supporting appendices this book explores the role of Islam in precipitating Europe s twelfth century commercial renaissance Employing the classic analytic techniques of economics Gene Heck determines that medieval Europe s feudal interregnum was largely caused by indigenous governmental business regulation and not by shifts in international trade patterns He then proceeds by demonstrating how Islamic economic precepts provided the ideological rationales that empowered medieval Europe to escape its three centuries long experiment in Dark Age economics in the process providing the West with its archetypic tools of capitalism While treatises such as Maxime Rodinson s excellent book Islam and Capitalism document the capitalistic nature of the Islamic economic system in applying modern economic method to medieval orientalist historiography this work is unique in capturing both the evolution and the impact of the system s role in forging medieval history The Arabs and Arabia on the Eve of Islam F.E. Peters,2017-09-29 This volume examines the background to the rise of Islam The opening essays consider the broad context of nomad sedentary relations in the Near East thereafter the focus is on the Arabian peninsula and the history of the Arab peoples The following papers set out the political and economic structures of the pre Islamic period and are concerned to trace the evolution of religious beliefs in the area looking in particular at the role of local traditions and the impact of Jewish and Christian influences Money, Power and Politics in Early Islamic Syria John Haldon,2016-04-22 The transformation of the eastern provinces of the Roman empire from the middle of the seventh century CE under the impact of Islam has attracted a good deal of scholarly attention in recent years and as more archaeological material becomes available has been subject to revision and rethinking in ways that radically affect what we know or understand about the area about state building and the economy and society of the early Islamic world and about issues such as urbanisation town country relations the ways in which a different religious culture impacted on the built environment and about politics This volume represents the fruits of a workshop held at Princeton University in May 2007 to discuss the ways in which recent work has affected our understanding of the nature of economic and exchange activity in particular and the broader implications of these advances for the history of the region Commercial Agreements and Social Dynamics in Medieval Genoa Quentin van Doosselaere,2009-04-27 An empirical study of medieval long distance trade agreements and the surrounding social dynamics drawing on 20 000 notarial records The Oxford Handbook of Late Antiquity Scott Fitzgerald Johnson,2015-11 The Oxford Handbook of Late Antiquity offers an innovative overview of a period c 300 700 CE that has become increasingly central to scholarly debates over the history of western and Middle Eastern civilizations This volume covers such pivotal events as the fall of Rome the rise of Christianity the origins of Islam and the early formation of Byzantium and the European Middle Ages These events are set in the context of widespread literary artistic cultural and religious change during the period The geographical scope of this Handbook is unparalleled among comparable surveys of Late Antiquity Arabia Egypt Central Asia and the Balkans all receive dedicated treatments while the scope extends to the western kingdoms and North Africa in the West Furthermore from economic theory and slavery to Greek and Latin poetry Syriac and Coptic literature sites of religious devotion and many others this Handbook covers a wide range of topics that will appeal to scholars from a diverse array of disciplines The Oxford Handbook of Late Antiquity engages the perennially valuable questions about the end of the ancient world and the beginning of the medieval while providing a much needed touchstone for the study of Late Antiquity itself Nomads in the Middle East , The Hadrami Diaspora Leif O. Manger,2010 The Hadramis of South Yemen and the emergence of their diasporic communities throughout the Indian Ocean region are an intriguing facet of the history of this region s migratory patterns In the early centuries of migration the Yemeni or Hadrami traveler was both a trader and a religious missionary making the migrant community both a trade diaspora and a religious diaspora This tradition has continued as Hadramis around the world have been linked to networks of extremist Islamic inspired movements Osama bin Laden leader of Al Qaeda and descendant of a prominent Hadrami family as the most infamous example However communities of Hadramis living outside Yemen are not homogenous The author expertly elucidates the complexity of the diasporic process showing how it contrasts with the conventional understanding of the Hadrami diaspora as an unchanging society with predefined cultural characteristics originating in the homeland Exploring ethnic social and religious aspects the author offers a deepened understanding of links between Yemen and Indian Ocean regions including India Southeast Asia and the Horn of Africa and the emerging international community of Muslims

Studies on the Life of Muhammad and the Dawn of Islam Michael Lecker,2023-10-31 This volume includes 20 articles published between 1994 and 2020 on the subject of Mu ammad and the history of early Islam covered in five sections Arabia on the Eve of Islam Mu ammad at Medina Mu ammad and the Jews Mu ammad ibn Is q and the s ra and studies on early Islamic literature The book focuses on a variety of historical questions from the presumed Ghassanid Byzantine involvement in the hijra to Mu ammad s treaties with the main Jewish tribes of Yathrib Medina Predilection for detail especially in the realms of genealogy and geography is a salient characteristic of Lecker s research which in recent years has been increasingly based on digitized text repositories Many of the articles deal with the social and economic environment of early Islam which is vital for the study of Mu ammad s biography They are conceived of as building blocks in a future critical biography of the Arabian prophet Studies on the Life of Muhammad and the Dawn of Islam will appeal to those interested in the history of pre and early Islam with an emphasis on Mu ammad s life and his relations with the Jews of Arabia Dhow

Cultures of the Indian Ocean Abdul Sheriff,2024-05-30 The wooden dhow with its characteristic lateen sail is an appropriate icon for the early trading world of the Indian Ocean It was based on free trade unhindered by monopolies or superpower domination and pre dated globalisation by thousands of years It carried a motley crew of sailors traders and passengers and many commodities but the dhow was not merely an inanimate transporter of goods and people but an animated means of social interaction The dhow was at the mercy of the seasonal monsoons but mercifully this very fact multiplied opportunities for social interaction between the sailors and traders with their hosts around the rim of the Indian Ocean giving birth to cosmopolitan populations and cultures The dhow was thus a vehicle for a genuine dialog between civilisations The global world of the Indian Ocean had matured by the fifteenth century Islam was the most widespread religion along its rim but it had spread not by the sword but through peaceful commerce The heroes of this world were not the continental empires but a string of small port city states from Kilwa in East Africa to Melaka in Malaysia Nor was their influence confined to the littoral but penetrated deep into continental hinterlands economically socially and culturally Into this world two major incursions occurred from opposite directions the Chinese expeditions in the early fifteenth century and the Portuguese at the end of it The contrast could not have been more stark between the Indian Ocean tradition of free trade that the Chinese espoused despite their enormous strength and the Vasco da Gama epoch of armed mercantilism that ultimately led to colonial domination This sweeping and vividly written popular history of the dhow cultures contains dozens of color illustrations and many maps and is set to become the benchmark history of the early Indian Ocean The
