Toward Combined Arms Warfare Jonathan Mallory House,1985 Mobility, shock, and firepower: The Emergence of the U.S. Army's Armor Branch, 1917-1945 Robert S. Cameron, The following pages provide a narrative analysis of the U S Army s development of armored organizations and their related doctrine materiel and training activities in the period 1917-1945. The development of new armor doctrines and organizations to exploit emerging technologies, concepts, and missions is the heart of this work. How that transition was accomplished during the brief space of about twenty years, the accepted duration of a single generation, is a story worthy of careful examination as our Army gropes with managing similar transformations today. Mobility, Shock, and Firepower Robert S. Cameron, 2008. Captures the multifaceted development of the Armored Force from its inauspicious beginnings in World War I to its fully mature operational status at the close of World War II. Provides an excellent case study in force transformation. Gives attention to training maneuvers conducted in the interwar period. Source material includes reports, memorandums, and correspondence of the majors, lieutenant colonels, and colonels associated with armored development since World War I. Armor, 2010.

War, Strategy, and Military Effectiveness Williamson Murray, 2011-09-30. This collection of articles represents Professor Williamson Murray's efforts to elucidate the role that history should play in thinking about both the present and the future. They reflect three disparate themes in Professor Murray's work: his deep fascination with history and those who have acted in the past; his fascination with the similarities in human behavior between the past and the present; and his belief that the study of military and strategic history can be of real use to those who will confront the daunting problems of war and peace in the twenty-first century. The first group of essays addresses the relevance of history to an understanding of the present and to an understanding of the possibilities of the future. The second addresses the possible direct uses of history to think through the problems involved in the creation of effective military institutions. The final group represents historical case studies that serve to illuminate the present. AK273 WWI THE FIRST MECHANIZED WAR, This book provides a comprehensive and complete view of the crude beginnings and fast evolution of armored warfare during the Great War. It includes historical texts illustrated with period photographs and detailed colour profiles of each of the most outstanding models. Also included is a brief reference to the evolution of military aviation during the Great War with colour profiles of the most important fighter planes used by all contenders. As a bonus, the book offers a worldwide exclusive, a fantastic collection of large-format black-and-white photographs, surely such an amazing photo collection will inspire modellers into making accurate dioramas and vignettes of the First World War, the first mechanized war. The Encyclopedia Britannica James Louis Garvin, Franklin

Henry Hooper, Warren E. Cox, 1929. Military Innovation in the Interwar Period Williamson R. Murray, Allan R. Millett, 1998-08-13. In 1914 the armies and navies that faced each other were alike right down to the strengths of their companies and battalions and the designs of their battleships and cruisers. Differences were of degree rather than essence. During the interwar period, however, the armed forces grew increasingly asymmetrical, developing different approaches to the same problems. This study of major military innovations in the 1920s and 1930s explores differences in exploitation by the seven major military powers. The comparative essays investigate how and why innovation occurred or did not occur and explain much of the strategic and operative performance of the Axis and Allies in World War II. The essays focus on several instances of how military services developed new technology and weapons and incorporated them into their doctrine organization and styles of operations The Encyclopædia Britannica James Louis Garvin, Franklin Henry Hooper, Warren Earle Cox, 1929 Quarterly Review of Military Literature ,1940 Review of Current Military Literature ,1938
