Media and Public Shaming Julian Petley, 2013-06-30 The media today and especially the national press are frequently in conflict with people in the public eye particularly politicians and celebrities over the disclosure of private information and behaviour Historically journalists have argued that naming and shaming serious wrong doing and behaviour on the part of public officials is justified as being in the public interest However when the media spotlight is shone on perfectly legal personal behaviour family issues and sexual orientation and when in particular this involves ordinary people the question arises of whether such matters are really in the public interest in any meaningful sense of the term In this book leading academics commentators and journalists from a variety of different cultures consider the extent to which the media are entitled to reveal details of people's private lives the laws and regulations which govern such relations and whether these are still relevant in the age of social media

scientists and scholars of media law and communication studies Current Perspectives in Media Education P. Fraser, J. Wardle, 2013-09-12 This book emerged from the online project A Manifesto for Media Education and takes forward its starting points by asking some of the original contributors to expand upon their view of the purpose of media education and to support their perspective with accounts of practice The Power of Information Networks Lei Guo, Maxwell McCombs, 2015-12-07 The news media have significant influence on the formation of public opinion Called the agenda setting role of the media this influence occurs at three levels Focusing public attention on a select few issues or other topics at any moment is level one Emphasizing specific attributes of those issues or topics is level two The Power of Information Networks The Third Level of Agenda Setting introduces the newest perspective on this influence While levels one and two are concerned with the salience of discrete individual elements the third level offers a more comprehensive and nuanced perspective to explain media effects in this evolving media landscape the ability of the news media to determine how the public associates the various elements in these media messages to create an integrated picture of public affairs This is the first book to detail the theoretical foundations methodological approaches and international empirical evidence for this new perspective Cutting edge communication analytics such as network analysis Big Data and data visualization techniques are used to examine these third level effects Diverse applications of the theory are documented in political communication public relations health communication and social media research The Power of Information Networks will interest scholars students and practitioners concerned with the media and their social and cultural effects Mediating Politics: Newspapers, Radio, Television And The Internet Washbourne, Neil, 2010-04-01 The book explores the complex interconnections between media political organisation and society This is particularly important in a period when politics seems to be in crisis This crisis can be seen in problems of trust affecting political institutions and politicians the apparently widespread political cynicism and apathy of audiences and citizens and the perception that processes of globalisation are undermining the bases of contemporary democracy and public discussion Old cherished views and ideals seem dead and there appears to be no clear vision of the future This pessimistic view has been expressed most cogently and explicitly in the end of politics thesis Rather than taking this view the book investigates in detail how the use of media and new technology affects politics and how the consequences vary across national societies and regions It focuses in particular on the way new technology poses problems but also offers potentialities and solutions for political actors of all sorts To this end particular attention is paid to various political uses of the internet The book closely analyses how political parties pressure groups governments and social movements explore and develop the range of media forms and rhetorics and assesses the aggregate consequences this has for political life The book argues that key versions of the end of politics thesis are simply too pessimistic about what we can hope for from the future and imply an unrealistic nostalgia about the past Rather it puts the media politics relationship into the broader context of a culturally complex and changing contemporary information society Media Architecture

Alexander Wiethoff, Heinrich Hussmann, 2017-02-20 The augmentation of urban spaces with technology commonly referred to as Media Architecture has found increasing interest in the scientific community within the last few years At the same time architects began to use digital media as a new material apart from concrete glass or wood to create buildings and urban structures Simultaneously Human Computer Interaction HCI researchers began to exploit the interaction opportunities between users and buildings and to bridge the gaps between interface information medium and architecture As an example they extended architectural structures with interactive light emitting elements on their outer shell thereby transforming the surfaces of these structures into giant public screens At the same time the wide distribution of mobile devices and the coverage of mobile internet allow manifold interaction opportunities between open data and citizens thereby enabling the internet of things in the public domain However the appropriate distribution of information to all citizens is still cumbersome and a mutual dialogue not always successful i e who gets what data and when In this book we therefore provide a deeper investigation of Using Information and Media as Construction Material with media architecture as an input and output medium
