

New Jersey

The New Jersey Colorized State Quarter

Proud of its heritage as the third state to ratify the U.S. Constitution, on December 18, 1787, New Jersey traces its history back over 350 years. The Dutch and the Swedes were the first European settlers in the region early in the 17th century. When the Revolutionary War began in 1775, large numbers of New Jerseyites joined fellow patriots in their fight for independence. The colony's location, between New York City and Philadelphia, made it a major battleground. Over the course of the War, America and Britain fought nearly a hundred engagements on New Jersey soil, including the Battles of Trenton, Princeton and Monmouth.

In the 1800's, New Jersey was the home of historical events ranging from one of the most famous duels of all time to scientific inventions that would change the world forever. In 1804, Aaron Burr, the Vice President of the United States, shot and killed his political rival, Alexander Hamilton, in Weehawken. Toward the end of the century, in 1879, Thomas A. Edison invented the first electric light in Menlo Park. Today, New Jersey is the nation's most densely populated state. A major manufacturing center, it is famous for everything from farms and factories to the glittering casinos of Atlantic City.
