Reconstructing Judicial Review Sarah Nason, 2016-12-01 This book offers a new interpretation of judicial review in England and Wales as being concerned with the advancement of justice and good governance as opposed to being concerned primarily with ultra vires or common law constitutionalism It is developed both from examining the functions and values that ought to be served by judicial review and from analysis of empirical social facts about judicial review primarily as experienced in the Administrative Court Based on ground up case law analysis it constructs a new taxonomy on the grounds of judicial review mistake procedural impropriety ordinary common law statutory interpretation discretionary impropriety relevant irrelevant considerations breach of an ECHR protected right or equality duty and constitutional allocation of powers constitutional rights or other complex constitutional principles It explains each of these grounds what academic and judicial support there might be for them outside case law analysis and their similarities and differences when viewed against popular existing taxonomies It concludes that Administrative Court judges are engaged in ordinary common law statutory interpretation in approximately half of all cases and that where discretionary judgement is involved on the part of the initial decision maker judges do indeed consider their task to be one of determining whether the challenged decision was justified by reasoning of adequate quality It finds that judges apply ordinary common law principles of statutory interpretation with historical pedigrees including assessing the initial decision maker's reasoning with reference to statutory purpose and sifting relevant from irrelevant considerations including moral considerations The result is a ground breaking reassessment of the grounds of judicial review in England and

The Separation of Powers in the Contemporary Constitution Roger Masterman, 2010-12-02 In this 2010 book Roger Masterman examines the dividing lines between the powers of the judicial branch of government and those of the executive and legislative branches in the light of two of the most significant constitutional reforms of recent years the Human Rights Act 1998 and Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Both statutes have implications for the separation of powers within the United Kingdom constitution The Human Rights Act brings the judges into much closer proximity with the decisions of political actors than previously permitted by the Wednesbury standard of review and the doctrine of parliamentary sovereignty while the Constitutional Reform Act marks the emergence of an institutionally independent judicial branch Taken together the two legislative schemes form the backbone of a more comprehensive system of constitutional checks and balances policed by a judicial branch underpinned by the legitimacy of institutional independence
