Abstract

In this commentary, we call upon critical labour scholars, including labour geographers, to feature what sociologist Palmer called the ‘thrust of efficiency’ more centrally in their work. We put forth that the push for efficiency, as made possible by digital technology, needs to be analysed in terms of its historical lineage as well as in terms of its geographical scope. Centring efficiency in critical labour studies, necessitates three scholarly moves. These are particularly relevant for labour geography, a field that has so far tended to circumvent questions of colonality/labour, digital Taylorism, and the politics of (re-)writing economic geographies, in by-passing the literatures that deal with them. The plantation, an analytical category and ontic reality that stretches across several yet often unconnected bodies of literature – literary studies, Black Geographies, Caribbean studies, and the Black Radical Tradition, as well as in Global History – is central to our effort. Eventually, writing the plantation into the technological present-future can be the starting point for a larger and historico-geographically informed critique, in economic geography and beyond, of efficiency, a mode of thinking-cum-praxis based on input–output calculations, objectifying practices, violent value extraction and the removal of undesired ‘social frictions’ for the sake of capital accumulation.

New Labour A Critique

Denis Dillon, Bryan Fanning

New Labour A Critique:

New Labour Mark Bevir, 2005 An illuminative study of the most powerful political movement in Britain today Bevir presents new critiques and radical alternatives to New Labour Rethinking Labour's Past Nathan Yeowell, 2022-01-13 The Labour Party after Jeremy Corbyn is charting a new direction Here Nathan Yeowell has brought together a remarkable array of contributors to provide expert insight into twentieth century British history and Labour politics and how they might shape thinking about Labour's future Reframing the span of Labour history and its effects on contemporary British politics the book provides fresh thinking and analysis of various traditions themes and individuals These include the shifting significance of 1945 the need for more grounded interpretations of Tony Blair's legacy and the enduring importance of place identity and aspiration to the evolution of the party Contributions from leading historians such as Patrick Diamond Steven Fielding Ben Jackson Glen O Hara and Florence Sutcliffe Braithwaite are supplemented by those with experience of Labour electoral politics such as Rachel Reeves and Nick Thomas Symonds The result is an intellectually rich and politically relevant roadmap for Labour's future Governance, Consumers and Citizens M. Bevir, F. Trentmann, 2007-09-12 This is the first book to focus on governance and cultures of consumption expanding the debate and raising new conceptions and policy agendas It questions the changing place of the consumer as citizen in recent trends in governance the tensions between competing ideas and practices of consumerism and the active role of consumers in governance The Democratic Aspects of Trade Union Recognition Alan Bogg, 2009-09-02 Winner of the SLS Peter Birks Prize for Outstanding Legal Scholarship 2010 The long ascendancy of pluralism and collective laissez faire as a guiding ideology of British labour law was emphatically shattered by the New Right ideology of Thatcher and Major When New Labour was finally returned to power in 1997 it did not however attempt to resurrect the pre Thatcher preference for pluralist non intervention in collective industrial relations Instead it purported to follow a Third Way A centrepiece of this new approach was the statutory recognition provision introduced in Schedule A1 TULRCA 1992 By breaking with the tradition of voluntarism in respect of recognition of trade unions New Labour sought to provide a model of collective labour law which combined legal support with control through juridification A closer study of both the history of approaches to recognition and the current provisions opens up fundamental questions as to the nature of this new model and the ones it aimed to replace This book uses political philosophy to elucidate the character of those historical approaches and the nature of the Third Way itself in relation to statutory union recognition In particular it traces the progressive eclipse of civic republican values in labour law in preference for a liberal political philosophy The book articulates and defends a civic republican philosophy in terms of freedom as non domination the intrinsic value of democratic participation through deliberative democracy and community This can be contrasted with the rights based individualism and State neutrality characteristic of the liberal approach Despite the promise of civic community in the Third Way rhetoric this book demonstrates that the reality of New Labour's experiment in union recognition was an emphatic reassertion of liberalism in the sphere of workers collective rights This is the first monograph to offer a sustained critical analysis of legal approaches to trade union recognition It will be of particular interest to labour lawyers but also a wider audience of scholars in political philosophy and industrial relations Exploring the Utopian Impulse Michael J. Griffin, Tom Moylan, 2007 A series of essays by an international and trans disciplinary group of contributors which explores the nature and extent of the utopian impulse Working across a range of historical periods and cultures the book investigates key aspects of utopian theory texts and socio political practices Local Government at the Millenium Janice

Introduction to Education Studies is established as the key text for undergraduate students of education studies as well as for practitioners embarking on a higher degree The book provides a thorough grounding for students new to the subject without assuming a substantial prior knowledge of the area It also takes a multidisciplinary approach to the study of education drawing on the authors extensive experience of teaching and course development at both undergraduate and postgraduate level This updated edition includes new sections on the nature and purposes of education research in education ideologies and the curriculum lifelong learning comparative education social and psychological explanations for pupil student achievement policy developments in education This highly popular accessibly written text is essential reading for students on education studies courses The authors have provided an important resource for student study in education Importantly it reinforces the necessity of a multi disciplinary approach to the understanding of contested educational process and practices
