The Excavations at Ismant al-Kharab Gillian E Bowen, 2024-02-29 The adoption of Christianity by the Egyptian populace was well underway by the late third century but evidence for its presence in the archaeological record from the Nile valley is sparse This is due in part to the loss of ancient settlement sites beneath modern cultivation By comparison Ismant al Kharab ancient Kellis in Dakhleh Oasis was abandoned at the end of the fourth century and many of its structures survive intact The villagers moreover left behind a wealth of artefacts and documentation By the late third century some had converted to Christianity and by the early fourth century three churches were built to accommodate their growing numbers The churches afford an unparalleled window into three ecclesiastical complexes that served a single village The Large East Church moreover is the earliest surviving example of a purpose built basilica in Egypt known thus far It provides a better understanding of the development of Egyptian church architecture and has forced a reappraisal of the dates of certain features that were previously attributed to the fifth century The community established three burial grounds Kellis 2 with an estimated 3 500 4 000 graves a funerary church and associated graveyard and in a reused monumental mausoleum Christian cemeteries are known throughout North Africa Europe and Britain but in Egypt few are published in anything but a cursory manner At Kellis 800 graves have been excavated the earliest burials date to the late third century confirming the evidence of an early conversion by some villagers and its rapid expansion thereafter This volume provides the first detailed publication of the churches and Christian burial grounds It incorporates a discussion of the spread of Christianity in Egypt's Southern Oasis drawing upon data from the rich textual documentation from the site The material culture is presented in detail especially the extensive collection of ceramics glass and coins
