Joyce,1998 This study of Marianne Moore and the visual arts focuses on how art productions serve to break down and re create cultural practice proving that culture is a mutable organism reluctant to change but not impervious to it In doing so author Elisabeth W Joyce shows that even though Moore may have restricted herself to the quiet provincial life of Brooklyn her poetry attests to her resistance to the constrictions imposed by the predominating bourgeoisie This study presents the bifurcation between modernism and the avant garde where while the modernists retreated from engagement in society the avant gardistes remained focused on political and social issues in order to critique stifling cultural phenomena so that art could effect cultural changes In taking this stance instead of viewing Moore s poetry as typically and provincially American Joyce places her in the international and radical art movements of the early twentieth century of feminine anguish Maslen resists easy generalisations with respect to Rhys's portrayal of women's psychic pain attending carefully to the nuances of sexual cultural and ethnic displacement which inform the suffering of Rhys's protagonists Acknowledging the many fine recent critical engagements with Rhys's unique corpus of novels Maslen insists that Rhys's particular articulation of women's pain presents a significant literary transgression defying the intractable cultural interdiction against women making a fuss At the same time this book engages with the problematic privileging of melancholic and nostalgic discourse in the Western canon in general Rhys's work Maslen argues simultaneously celebrates and resists fundamentally Eurocentric and anti feminist paradigms of melancholia and nostalgia In short the ferocious melancholia of Jean Rhys's female voices poses constructive paradoxes and points of departure for feminist and post colonial debates in the 21st century
