Life on the Line Brian Stewart, 1997-05-15 Pierre tienne Fortin led a life and plied a career at the heart of Canada's early history He was an adventurer an amateur scientist an early if ambiguous conservationist and a Conservative politician from 1867 to 1888 He was a doctor on Grosse Ile amid the horrors of the 1847 typhus epidemic led a mounted police troop during the infamous Montreal riots of 1849 and as commander of the armed schooner La Canadienne policed the Gulf of St Lawrence from 1852 to 1867 when thousands of New Englanders and Nova Scotians swarmed over the fishing grounds His official life as magistrate and mid level bureaucrat often exemplified tensions of early nationhood those between elites and colonists and those arising from the nationalistic impulse to impose law and order on the wilderness The interests issues and sympathies at work on Fortin in the founding period remain compelling today job creation versus environmental protection free trade with the U S the exploitation of Canadian fisheries relations with aboriginal peoples and the political status of Quebec within confederation The Unlikely Bushman Ron Hicks, 2011 George Cartwright's The Labrador

Companion Marianne P. Stopp, 2016-09-01 New manuscripts directly related to Canada's history rarely come to light The Labrador Companion written in 1810 by Captain George Cartwright 1739-1819 and discovered in 2013 is a fascinating and unusual find because of its level of detail its setting in a hardly studied part of Britain's fur trade empire and because it is a personal account rather than a trade outfit ledger or government document This annotated edition transcribes The Labrador Companion in full Cartwright documented the everyday work of Labrador's particular kind of fur trade life based on his experiences operating a series of merchant stations in southern Labrador between 1770 and 1786 Although his focus is firmly on instruction in the manifold ways of capturing animals he also provides rare glimpses of Innu and Inuit life as well as of housekeeping and gardening The Labrador Companion includes a lengthy description of Labrador's fauna of land sea and air that counts among Canada's earliest natural history writing based on first hand observation A revealing account of fur trade era technology methods and materials conveyed through one man's acquired knowledge and skills The Labrador

Companion gives a close to the ground picture of the resource industries that were at the heart of British and French colonial presence in the Canadian northeast
