Re Thinking The Region Spaces Of Neo Liberalism:

Rethinking the Region John Allen, Doreen B. Massey, Allan Cochrane, Julie Charlesworth, 1998 Rethinking the Region argues that regions are not simply bounded spaces on a map This book uses unique research of England during the 1980s to show how regions are made and unmade by social processes The book examines how new lines of division both social and geographical were laid down as free market growth reconstructed the south east of England as a neo liberal region The authors argue that a more balanced form of growth is possible within and between regions as well as between social groups This book shows that to grasp the complexities of growth we must re think the region in time as well as in space urban areas The Neoliberal City presents an overview of the effect of these changes on today's cities The term neoliberalism was originally used in reference to a set of practices that first world institutions like the IMF and World Bank impose on third world countries and cities The support of unimpeded trade and individual freedoms and the discouragement of state regulation and social spending are the putative centerpieces of this vision More and more though people have come to recognize that first world cities are undergoing the same processes In The Neoliberal City Jason Hackworth argues that neoliberal policies are in fact having a profound effect on the nature and direction of urbanization in the United States and other wealthy countries and that much can be learned from studying its effect He explores the impact that neoliberalism has had on three aspects of urbanization in the United States governance urban form and social movements The American inner city is seen as a crucial battle zone for the wider neoliberal transition primarily because it embodies neoliberalism's antithesis Keynesian egalitarian liberalism Focusing on issues such as gentrification in New York City public housing policy in New York Chicago and Seattle downtown redevelopment in Phoenix and urban landscape change in New Brunswick N J Hackworth shows us how material and symbolic changes to institutions neighborhoods and entire urban regions can be traced in part to the rise of neoliberalism

Lambek, Priscilla Claeys, Adrienna Wong, Lea Brilmayer, 2014-01-10 Taking as a starting point that hunger results from social exclusion and distributional inequities and that lasting sustainable and just solutions are to be found in changing the structures that underlie our food systems this book examines how law shapes global food systems and their ongoing transformations Using detailed case studies historical mapping and legal analysis the contributors show how various actors farmers civil society groups government officials international bodies use or could use different legal tools legislative jurisprudential norm setting on various scales local national regional global to achieve structural changes in food systems Section 1 Institutionalizing New Approaches explores the possibility of institutionalizing social change through two alternative visions for change the right to food and food sovereignty Individual chapters discuss V a Campesina's struggle to implement food sovereignty principles into international trade law and present case studies on adopting food sovereignty legislation in Nicaragua and right to food legislation in Uganda The chapters in Section 2 Regulating for Change explore the extent to which the regulation of actors can or cannot change incentives and produce
