The brain is an organ, just like the heart and the lungs. But the brain's job is different from the jobs of other organs. The heart moves blood through the body, and the lungs move air. But the brain doesn't "do." Instead, it's like a boss that directs the rest of the body. It communicates electrochemically, using billions of neurons to transmit signals. The brain controls everything that we think about—and things that we don't think about, too. Whether you're having an exciting discussion, winning a wrestling match, or breathing while you sleep, the brain is in charge. It uses 20% of the body's total energy in order to manage all these things at once.

Which of these describes a job that is most like that of the human brain?

- ☐ A An assembly line, which moves different parts of a car through a factory
- ☒ B A director who controls the production of a movie and manages the crew and the actors

According to the passage, the brain "is like a boss that directs the rest of the body." It is most like a director, managing and directing the crew and actors on a movie set.
- ☐ C An airplane, which takes hundreds of people from one place to another
- ☐ D A waiter who delivers food that their customers have requested

The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him.
