Orthography and Literacy R. Malatesha Joshi, P.G. Aaron, 2013-05-13 Until about two decades ago the study of writing systems and their relationship to literacy acquisition was sparse and generally modeled after studies of English language learners This situation is now changing As the worldwide demand for literacy continues to grow researchers from different countries with different language backgrounds have begun examining the connection between their writing systems and literacy acquisition This text which derives from a NATO sponsored conference on orthography and literacy brings together the research of 70 scholars from across the world the largest assemblage of such experts to date Their findings are grouped into three parts as follows Part I Literacy Acquisition in Different Writing Systems describes the relationship between orthography and literacy in twenty five orthographic systems This section serves as a handy reference source for understanding the orthographies of languages as diverse as Arabic Chinese English Icelandic Kannada and Kishwahili Part II Literacy Acquisition From a Cross Linguistic Perspective makes direct comparisons of literacy acquisition in English and other orthographic systems The overall conclusion that emerges from these eight chapters is that the depth of an orthographic system does influence literacy acquisition primarily by slowing down the acquisition of reading skills Even so studies show that dyslexic readers can be found across all orthographic systems whether shallow or deep which shows that dyslexia also has internal cognitive and biological components Part III Literacy Acquisition Instructional Perspectives explores literacy acquisition from developmental and instructional perspectives and ends with a look into the future of literacy research This Handbook is appropriate for scholars researchers and graduate students in such diverse fields as cognitive psychology psycholinguistics literacy education English as a second language and communication disorders The Oxford Handbook of Eye Movements Simon Liversedge, Iain Gilchrist, Stefan Everling, 2011-08-18 In the past few years there has been an explosion of eye movement research in cognitive science and neuroscience The Oxford Handbook of Eye Movements provides the first comprehensive review of the entire field of eye movement research This book is the definitive reference work in this field Teaching English Reading in the Chinese-Speaking World Clay Williams, 2016-04-07 This book investigates inherent structural differences in the Chinese and English writing systems which predispose learners from childhood to develop specific literacy learning strategies which can impair later efforts at learning foreign language literacy if the foreign language script varies significantly from the native language script It compares educational practices and philosophies in Chinese and English speaking classrooms and examines the psychological underpinnings of these literacy learning strategies This book presents psychometric testing of adult reading strategy defaults and examines case study data revealing that Chinese students are susceptible to misapplying Chinese character level processing strategies to English word identification tasks which decreases reading efficiency and ultimately can lead to learning failure Finally a new educational framework is proposed for teaching beginning language specific word identification and literacy learning skills to learners whose first language script varies significantly from that of the target language Teaching and Learning Chinese as a Foreign or Second Language: The Educational Psychology Perspective Yang Frank Gong, Chun Lai, Jinghe Han, Chan Lu, Sihui Echo Ke, 2024-02-21 Over the past two decades Chinese as a foreign or second language CFL CSL has been increasingly taught and learnt as an important language both within and outside China Studies in the field have attempted to address deep seated tensions between existing educational ideologies concepts strategies and approaches and student learning process and performance and between existent teaching methods and techniques and the globalization of Chinese language education The Science of Reading Margaret J. Learning to Read Across Languages Keiko Koda, Annette M. Zehler, 2008-03-03 This book systematically examines how learning to read occurs in diverse languages and in so doing explores how literacy is learned in a second language by learners who have achieved at least basic reading skills in their first language As a consequence of rapid globalization such learners are a large and growing segment of the school population worldwide and an increasing number of schools are challenged by learners from a wide variety of languages and with distinct prior literacy experiences To succeed academically these learners must develop second language literacy skills yet little is known about the ways in which they learn to read in their first languages and even less about how the specific nature and level of their first language literacy affects second language reading development This volume provides detailed descriptions of five typologically diverse languages and their writing systems and offers comparisons of learning to read experiences in these languages Specifically it addresses the requisite competencies in learning to read in each of the languages how language and writing system properties affect the way children learn to read and the extent and ways in which literacy learning experience in one language can play a role in subsequent reading development in another Both common and distinct aspects of literacy learning experiences across languages are identified thus establishing a basis for determining which skills are available for transfer in second language reading development Learning to Read Across Languages is intended for researchers and advanced students in the areas of second language learning psycholinguistics literacy bilingualism and cross linguistic issues in language processing The Routledge Handbook of Chinese Applied Linguistics Chu-Ren Huang,Zhuo Jing-Schmidt,Barbara
